Victory smiles are flashed by the four winners in the aldermanic race for two-year terms on city council. And congratulations of the other three are directed at Ald. Austin Curtis, re-elected with the biggest majority. Beside him, front right, is Ald. Arthur Dowell, who ran second. Joint Hall Study Asked

Small Vote Backs Smith; Curtis, Dowell Win Easily

McEwen, Moresby Stage Close Race

BY R. O. MARRION

Less than one-third of Victoria's registered voters, 31.3 per cent, cast ballots in the civic elections yesterday, but those who did vote seemed to indicate fairly clearly what they wanted.

They showed definitely that they wanted an inter-municipal study of the possibility of building a joint Saanich-Victoria municipal hall and uniting some services continued. They voted 4,879 to 1,205 on this question.

They appeared to indicate that they wanted the trades-licence system made more equitable and the contribution of big businesses increased. Some candidates and council members saw this indication in the triumph of Ald. J. Donald Smith over Robert Macmillan and retiring Oak Bay councillor S. Patrick Birley in the by-election for a one-year term. Some didn't.

FINAL TOTALS

According to the final-count totals, Ald. Smith, who had campaigned solely on the basis that he would pursue his attempt to have trades-licences revised and firms pay their "fair share," thus raising enough extra revenue to avoid a property-tax increase, received 2,505 votes.

Ald. Macmillan, who had asked for public support for his proposal that the city engineer should take over the duties of the city manager, received 1,874 votes.

SOUNDNESS STRESSED

In the election of four aldermen for two-year terms, the voters appeared again to be in favor of raising more revenue from business, although their ballots also gave an indication that they wanted sound, business-like administration.

They gave first place to Ald. Austin Curtis, re-elected for a second term with 4,804 votes according to the final count. Ald. Curtis, a member with Ald. Smith of the council committee investigating trades licences and business tax, has shown no inclination to rush into a revision of the system.

The voters gave second place to Ald. Arthur Dowell, re-elected for a fourth term with 3,951 votes. Chairman of the public works committee and another proponent of business-like policies, Ald Dowell is another alderman who favors caution in revising business fees.

Third place according to the final count, went to Hugh D. Ramsay, with 3,080 votes. Mr. Ramsay in his campaign insisted that the trades-licence system should be revised.

Elmer D. McEwen, in fourth place in the first count with 2,874 votes—just 24 more than William J. Moresby at that time and only three votes in the second count — made Greater Victoria amalgamation the chief plank in his platform, but seemed in sympathy with the proposal to revise trades-licences and impose business tax.

The comparatively poor turnout of voters caused some concern among civic officials.

Property-owners, 5,700 of them, also voted yesterday on the $5,600,000 school construction by-law, but the results will be withheld until Saturday evening.

Quebec for Fleming — Fulton Scholarly

Diefenbaker's Aim Unity for Canada

OTTAWA (BUP) — Favored John Diefenbaker last night made his bid for the Conservative leadership with a 20-minute speech in English and French, answering his Quebec critics.

Diefenbaker was given a frenzied greeting by hundreds of placard-waving, cheering, singing and stomping supporters in all sections of the hall.

In his opening sentence, the 61-year-old Prince Albert, Sask., member of parliament answered President Leon Balcer's criticism of him for not having been either nominated or seconded by a Quebec delegate.

The other two candidates, Donald Fleming and E. Davie Fulton, each had a Quebec seconder. Balcer told reporters before the night session began that Quebec delegates were hurt by Diefenbaker's selection.

PEARKES ACTS

"In my first words of thanks to my mover and seconder," the sharp-voiced Saskatchewaner said, "let me say this: they were chosen to give living testimony of the fact that this party extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific."

Speaking in French, Diefenbaker pledged that French Canada's "constitutional rights above all will be respected and protected" if he is chosen leader. It was Diefenbaker's first major speech in French.

BANISH DEFEATISM

He called on Conservatives to "banish any spirit of defeatism . . . and look forward to our tomorrows as a great adventure." He said, the party, "can and will win the next election."

"If you choose me your leader, I give you this as my dedication:

"I have but one love, Canada. I have but one purpose, its greatness. I have but one aim, unity from the Atlantic to the Pacific."

Donald Fleming, Quebec's first choice for the leadership, swore before the packed convention hall that he had made no deals or bargains with anyone.

FREE TO DO DUTY

"I am completely free to do my duty to this party as a Canadian," he said in a fighting speech to the party's national convention, appealing for its support.

"What is our aim?" he demanded. "It is victory, and nothing less than victory," quoting Sir Winston Churchill. "We shall seek that goal by every honorable means.

"I condemn the Liberals for playing off one part of the country against another."

His speech was repeatedly interrupted by noisy demonstrations of support from the Quebec and other delegates.

If he won the leadership, he promised, "this party will stand unswervingly and unmistakably for freedom, for the supremacy of Parliament, for the rule of law, for the autonomy of the nation, for a scrupulous respect for the constitutional rights of

Toys Still Needed

Four Days Left To Send Help To '500' Fund

Only four days from the deadline for donations, the "500 Christmas Fund" of The Daily Colonist rose to more than $4,600 yesterday.

Smaller contributions were the rule, including $1.16 brought into the downtown office at 1215 Broad by two children who would only say "we're Susan and Laurie and we put on a sale for your fund."

Gifts of toys for the auction in Maynard and Sons, 733 Johnson, at 7.30 p.m. Wednesday on behalf of the fund, increased slightly in number, but officials said that toys "of all kinds and sizes still are needed."

HOW TO HELP

Donations to the fund may be mailed to The Daily Colonist or left at this newspaper, its downtown office or the office of the police chief's secretary.

A collection will also be taken at tonight's hockey game (see story, sport pages).

Does Smith's Victory Mean Tax Demand?

Views of candidates, and of Mayor Percy Scurrah, on the meaning of yesterday's vote were similar in most respects, but widely at variance in one—trades licences and business tax.

Mayor Scurrah held that the victory of Ald. J. Donald Smith did not necessarily represent a popular demand for the imposition of business tax.

Ald. Austin Curtis, re-elected to council for a two-year term with an overwhelming majority, felt the same. The by-election vote won by Ald. Smith, he said, was a vote against Ald. Robert Macmillan and in support of the city manager system and the city manager.

SUPPORT POSSIBLE

Ald. Arthur Dowell, who ran second to Ald. Curtis in the leection for two-year terms, thought the by-election vote "possibly" could mean popular support for Ald. Smith, but regarded it too as a vote against Ald. Macmillan's proposal to have the city engineer take over the city manager's duties.

On the other hand, Ald. Don Smith saw his victory as a popular demand for revision of trade licences and levying of a business tax—"no doubt about it."

So did Ald. Macmillan—"I see it definitely as an indication of a strong demand for revision of trade licences"—and Hugh Ramsay. Elmer McEwen and William J. Moresby.

Here are some of the comments as the results of the elections became clear:

Ald. Smith: "The people have spoken (about the trades licence system) and now council I am sure will carry out their wishes. The people after studying the problem have made their decision, and I am satisfied it will be carried out to the full."

Mayor Scurrah: "We have recognized for some time that there are inequalities (in the system) but it is an extremely complex subject when one gets into it."

The mayor said the "one objection I have to business tax is this, that it is my information that you cannot have a business tax with classifications, charging different rates to different categories, for this reason:

"If you charge one category more than another you are assuming without proof that a person in that category is making more money than the other one, and impinging on the income tax field.

CITY COULD LOSE

"I am told on what I believe is excellent authority that if we have categories with varying rates, the system could be challenged in the court and the city would lose out.

"If I am right in what I say, the little fellow is going to be hurt by a business tax, and that is something I'm anxious to avoid."

The mayor said he was not surprised but very disappointed with the 31.3 per cent turnout of voters, and said also that he would like to see property qualifications for councillors reduced.

Ald. Curtis' leading of the polls means among other things, "the people of Victoria agree that we need a new fire hall and I'm going to do my best to see they get it," he said.

Ald. Curtis did not see Ald. Smith's victory as a popular demand for imposition of business fees and revision of the UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The United Nations General Assembly approved Thursday a plan ending British trusteeship over the African territory of Togoland and its eventual union with the Gold Coast in a new country to be known as Ghana.

The Gold Coast will become an independent member of the Commonwealth March 6.

Parents, Brother Die — Sleeping Girl Survives

Seas Wash Anita Goertz Safely Ashore

MADRID (Reuters)—A 13-year-old Victoria girl, Anita Goertz, was found alive on a Spanish beach Thursday after being washed ashore from a wrecked yacht in which her parents, her brother and two British sailors died.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Helmuth Goertz of Victoria, B.C., who drowned when their 46-ton yacht, Goedeke-Michel—bound from Britain to the Mediterranean—ran aground in a storm Thursday morning.

Also dead were Anita's 10-year-old brother, Richard, and two sailors, said to be British. They were Stanley Roberts, 25, and Bird Nasina, 67.

Residents of the Spanish Port of Aviles, on the Bay of Biscay, found the dark-haired little girl, lying on the beach clinging to a piece of wood which had born her ashore.

First reports said she had been picked up by a Spanish fishing trawler, but Thursday night Miguel Gonzales, who lives in Aviles said that he found Anita on the beach and carried her to his home.

He said she was unhurt and was resting.

Port authorities said the yacht was wrecked when it ran aground while trying to make Aviles harbor in a heavy sea.

They said the entrance to the port was narrow and, probably due to mist and heavy swell, the yacht missed the entrance, went aground on sandbanks near the shore and broke up almost immediately.

The bodies of the five persons have not yet been recovered.

Gonzales told Reuters by telephone he heard a Spanish trawler hooting its siren at 7 a.m.

With his son, he ran to the beach. "Deep breakers were rolling in from the Atlantic and there was a light mist. We found Anita lying on the beach alongside a piece of wood to which she had clung," he said.

They carried her to their house where she was examined by a doctor who found her unhurt.

"However, she is staying in bed and my wife and myself are looking after her," he said.

She told Gonzalez' son, who speaks English, that she and her parents left Dartmouth, England, last Friday for Palma, Majorca, to spend a few months there.

He said the British vice-consul in Gijon, 20 miles east of Aviles, came to see the girl and will consult the Canadian embassy in Madrid on what arrangements should be made for her.

"She told my son she was asleep when the yacht went aground. Her father, mother and brother and the two sailors were on deck.

"The yacht broke into small pieces under the pounding of heavy Atlantic breakers and Anita found herself in the water, holding on to a piece of wreckage.

"I and my son and other friends carried Anita to my home."

Gonzalez added: "She said they had arrived recently in England from Canada on a cargo ship and had bought the yacht in England."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

"NEITHER a borrower nor a lender be," one of Shakespeare's characters advised, "for loan oft loses both itself and friend.

Thousands of simple folk are learning the truth of that smug maxim.

A man I know—call him Jack — was approached by Charlie, a colleague in his office.

"I'm in a tough spot," Charlie said. "I have to have some money right away. Would you co-sign a note for me? It won't cost you anything. Just lend your name. It means you'll have to trust me, though. Can you do that?"

"I guess so," said Jack, wearily. So he went to the bank, endorsed the note, and his pal pocketed the loan.

Charlie repaid a few installments. But some weeks later he came to Jack again.

"Look, I'm in deeper than I thought," Charlie said. "I have to have a bit more. Will you sign for me again?"

* * *

Jack looked at him doubtfully. Charlie was a good man. They had gone fishing, drunk a glass or two of beer together. He was efficient at his job; a shade reckless, but apparently a man of his word. He had borrowed the odd five or 10 dollars before, always returned it promptly.

Jack was one of those people who like to make good fellows of themselves. Maybe it was vanity, or generosity, or weakness of will —or a mixture of all three.

"All right, if you really need the money, I'll do it," he said. He signed again — at a finance company this time.

After a time Charlie lost his job. "If you'll pay one or two installments of the finance company loan, I'll make it good as soon as I'm on my feet," he said. "I'm up to date with the bank."

Jack had debts of his own, and a family to support, but his name was on the line. That signature meant that he undertook to make good if the borrower defaulted. So he paid one or two installments.

Someone Has to Pay

Charlie, meanwhile, had landed a job in another town. He wrote declaring he would soon begin to pay. Jack put the debts out of his mind—until polite letters arrived from both the bank and the finance company. They said they hated to bring the subject up, but Charlie seemed to have fallen behind in his loan, and somebody had to pay.

Jack was that somebody. He paid and paid. From time to time he dropped letters to his friend, pointing out that he was having difficulty meeting the payments, and would Charlie help as soon as possible.

Jack wrote cheerful, light-hearted notes at first, mentioning holes in his shoes and lunches of peanut butter and potatoes. But Charlie did not reply, until he wrote to announce that he had quit his job again, and needed further support. But, he said, it wouldn't be long before he had another job, and as soon as he got on his feet . . .

* * *

Charlie did land another job—but months went by, and Jack was still paying.

He earned moderately good money, but he had debts of his own, and a family. The extra burden crippled him. There were frequent quarrels with his wife. He worried over the debt, found it thrusting into his mind when he was trying to work. He lived in a state of sour, self-reproaching tension.

* * *

He dropped the jocular tone in his letters and bluntly asked when Charlie intended to pay. Charlie wrote back a letter full of abuse. What did he mean, moaning and whining like that, Charlie wanted to know. Jack was earning good money. He had a car; some bonds. Anyway, said Charlie, he needn't put on the big-hearted act. He was only paying because he had to.

After a while, Jack put the affair in the hands of a lawyer. Back came another insulting letter. Charlie said he was loaded with debts. If Jack wanted his money, he would have to stand by until Charlie got in the clear—and he hadn't a notion when that would be.

Jack kept his mouth shut for months, but he grew so disgusted that he began to talk it over with others. And he learned that three out of four of the people he spoke to had gone through a similar experience at some time.

Jack and his wife and children went short on clothes, sometimes on food; but they paid Charlie's debt in full. Now Jack is trying to clean up his own. He swears that he will take Charlie to court and make him pay every nickel, plus costs. He probably means it, too. Jack is a wiser man. He wouldn't sign a note for his mother. As for his friends—old Jack isn't sure that he has any.

Fall Injures City Worker

A construction worker was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday after a fall from a scaffolding at Fisgard and Douglas.

Peter de Lang, 638 Grenville, was admitted with suspected rib injuries and a fractured shoulder. X-rays were taken.

Cardinal Mindszenty sits tensely beside a Red guard during his 1949 "people's trial," which led to a sentence of life imprisonment.

The Cardinal's Story

'I Won't Be a Puppet; I Won't Compromise'

Hiding Bloody Hands, They Sought Peace

By JOSEF CARDINAL MINDSZENTY as told to Father Josef Vecsey

(This is the fifth of six articles in which Father Josef Vecsey, a lifelong friend of Cardinal Mindszenty, recounts the Cardinal's experiences in Communist captivity.)

I began to suspect soon after I was transferred from the Collecting Prison to the country that my health was not their prime concern. The life or death of a prisoner does not occupy them unless they can use it to their own ends.

They still guarded me closely at Puspokszentlaszlo. They locked me into a single room on the second floor. Downstairs were 12 AVO policemen and four AVO policewomen. The men guarded me, the women ran the house.

Their purpose was to use me as an example of their new policy of peaceful co-existence. I would not co-operate with them in this anymore than I would co-operate with them in anything else.

One day at the beginning of my stay at Puspokszentlaszlo, an AVO officer came to my room and told me that I could use the balcony of my room or take a walk at any time in the park. "We will give you permission," said the guard, "if you ask for it."

"Then I won't go." I answered. The door of the balcony and the door of the room remained locked.

My food was good. I was able to sleep quietly. But then started visits of a man from a special section of the AVO called the Mindszenty Branch. His assignment was to argue me into co-operation. One time he came to my room and said, "Aren't we kind to our prisoners?"

IN THREE DAYS

Within three days a Father John Toth, former pastor of the Regnum Marianum Church in Budapest, which was torn down to make room for an enormous statue of Stalin, was sent to live with me as a secretary.

(That statue was toppled over by freedom fighters on the first day of the revolution.)

Father Toth was a likeable man, quiet, and his presence added much to the re-establishment of my health. A few days after he came I discovered that my door was no longer locked. The balcony door was also open. I could walk wherever I wanted.

Still the man from Budapest came to see me. He argued that both I and the whole Catholic church could have it much better if I would co-operate with him. "Don't be so stubborn," said the man.

His hints were obvious that it was through me that the Bolsheviks wished to mislead Rome and, hiding their bloody hands, seek a meeting with the Vatican. It would have been extremely important to them to launch reports "we negotiate with the Vatican."

I refused to become his puppet. I would not be used as a peace feeler. There can be no compromise with Bolshevism. No era of good feeling between the church and atheism.

This man from Budapest indicated he wanted me to see visitors from abroad so they could display me to the world as an example of their graciousness. As if to win me over to them a tailor was sent to make me a new soutane with red buttons and a red lining. I told them to bring back my old soutane, which they had ripped from my body the day I was arrested. To my surprise, they did this. But also they put the new one in my closet.

On Oct. 12, 1955, my mother visited me again. We thought she could stay a week or so, but the next day she was sent away. The reason for this was that Oct. 14, Archbishop Grosz was brought to the castle. This made a great change in my life and made me happy, later on.

FIFTEEN YEARS

(Archbishop Grosz was the Cardinal's successor as the head of the Hungarian Catholic Church. He, too, had resisted all Communist pressures of compromise, and had been finally arrested in 1951 and sentenced to 15 years imprisonment.

Although Archbishop Grosz was locked into his room across the hall from me, I was able to communicate with him. When no one watched I would dash across the hall, and through a crack in the door, slip into his hand small sheets of paper. In this way we talked with one another until the end of November, when the AVO guards allowed us to see each other.

At the end of November in 1955 the AVO people began to complain that the dampness of the castle was bad for their health. This had them seriously worried, and within a few days of their telling us we were all put into cars and driven to the north of Hungary, to the castle at Felsopeteny. There Father Toth, Archbishop Grosz and I spent Christmas together.

Love that Rain —It Goes Deep

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I have often noticed that gardeners new to Vancouver Island will grouse and grumble over the

The trouble w hen it was fall and winter.

Those with more gardening experience are not so vocal about our winter rains — they realize that it is only during the autumn and winter that the subsoil beneath our gardens can be properly moistened, and they understand that without an adequate supply of moisture in the subsoil, few plants will grow properly.

MYSTERIOUS TROUBLE

Many mysterious troubles can be traced to this cause. Poor crops, slow and indifferent growth, early leaf fall, fruit troubles such as "bitter pit" of pears and apples and "blossom end rot" in tomatoes, all can be brought about by a lack of subsoil moisture.

Not only do the roots of quite a few plants penetrate to the lower depths, but what is even more important, the subsoil should provide a reserve of moisture on which the upper soil can draw as it is required, and all kinds of queer nutritional difficulties can develop when sufficient moisture is lacking.

UNSUSPECTED

One of the difficulties about subsoil dryness is that it is so often unsuspected. Fairly frequent showers of rain may keep the surface adequately moist to a depth of several inches, and it is only when you delve deep, as when you dig a post hole, for instance, that signs of unnatural dryness are found.

As a rule, it is only in the winter that natural rainfall penetrates deeply enough to set up a proper reserve of moisture in the subsoil. Summer showers, even when heavy and prolonged, seldom soak deeply enough into soil already so warm and dry that the moisture is absorbed rapidly and soon evaporated. It is most enlightening to sink a few test holes in your garden after such summer rains—you will be shocked to find such scanty penetration.

NOTHING WOULD GROW

I can recall a small farm in Saanich on which nothing would grow properly. Newly planted fruit trees sickened and died, hay was scanty and of poor quality, and even shallow-rooting berry bushes had all the symptoms of mineral deficiency, although chemical analysis showed the soil to be adequately stocked with nutrients.

The troble, when it was finally found was due to subsoil dryness. The previous owner, an eccentric but wealthy man, had decided to install tile drains in his fields, but as he was in the habit of doing things bigger and better than anyone else, he had sunk his porous tile drain pipes two or three times deeper than normal, with unhappy results.

ALL YEAR ROUND

Some areas in the garden are often found to be suffering from subsoil drought all year round. I lost a nice batch of polyanthus primroses once through this cause, when I attempted to bring them through the summer in a shady nook under the spreading branches of an old pine tree.

It never occurred to me that the evergreen tree shed the bulk of the winter rainfall, and died that I discovered, under a couple of inches of moist, woodsy soil, a deep layer of hopelessly dry subsoil.

Children Led Heroism

This is the fourth of a series by the only American correspondent to stay in Budapest through the Hungarian revolution and its suppression.

LONDON (UP)—Heroism is an overworked word, but if I were handing out medals they would go to the entire Hungarian people.

Never has an entire nation fought with such desperate courage, for such unselfish motives and against such overwhelming odds.

The workers, the students, the women and the children of Hungary fought and won the revolution of Tuesday, Oct. 23. They fought and died in resisting the Soviet return. And when their weapons proved weaker than their spirit, they simply refused to work for their Moscow masters.

To choose any Hungarian as the hero would insult the thousands of those who fought. But there were these individuals who stand out in my memory:

The 14-year-old girl who turned herself into a human torch to set fire to three Russian trucks and the guns they towed. She died with half a dozen Russian soldiers caught in the flames.

The 13-year-old boy with the shaved head. He had fought in both the revolution and the Soviet attack of Nov. 4. The Russians herded him along with some other 2,000 young Hungarians into cattle cars for deportation. He had escaped and walked all the way back to Budapest.

The children — and I mean children — who spread the sloping streets leading into Moscow Square with heavy oil and soap so Soviet tanks skidded and went out of control as they attempted to charge the barricades.

With the few weapons they had taken from the police, the Hungarians fought the Soviet army.

With Molotov cocktails — bottles of gasoline — they knocked out so many of the Soviet T-34 tanks that the Russians never again used them against organized resistance.

But finally, courage, ingenuity and old weapons were not enough.

In their second attack, the Russians brought in their T-54 tanks. They were virtually invulnerable to fire. Unlike the 34s, their gasoline was carried in internal tanks. The Soviets also used planes, the MiG 15s and 17s and the IL-28s, to bomb strong points.

Even after the crushing resistance in Budapest, the struggle went on in the country. Students at Sarospatak College near Satoraljauhely, not far from the Soviet border, took to the hills as partisans, confining the Russians to the main roads.

As I write this, fighting is breaking out again. If it does, I will hope against all logic and reason, that a people who have taught the world a lesson in courage will win.

A British diplomat said to me one night in Budapest:

"These are a people who must be especially beloved of God."

I subscribe.

'Craftsman Far Above Average'

Victorians Pay Tribute To Famed Photographer

Leading Victoria photographers were unanimous in their praise for Helmuth Goertz, who died on the coast of Spain yesterday when his yacht was wrecked in a storm.

Paul Joncas, 2060 Beach, was one of the last people in Victoria to see Mr. Goertz before he left the city. "I saw him in the morning before he left," he said. "I bought some lenses from him. I would say he was within the top three portrait photographers in Canada.

"He was very, very good. He helped a lot of photographers in Victoria, generally, and was one of the pioneers in the formation of the Professional Photographers' Association of B.C.

"His name will live forever in the association. Four years ago he donated the Goertz trophy for the annual fishing derby. Five years ago when the Hughes trophy was first offered for competition he won it. I have nothing but praise for him."

Jack Price, 1485 Bromley Place: "I think he was one of the most outstanding portrait photographers, not only in Canada, but also on the continent. He had a unique ability to use light.

"In his own field he had no peer and he was a good all-round photographer. He had an approach which is not usual in his field.

"I made a bet with him before he left Victoria that he would make an international reputation for himself when he reached London."

H. U. Knight, 1955 Waterloo: "I was the only Victoria photographer to photograph Mr. Goertz. He was a good friend of mine. I photographed him the morning he left Victoria. He had some fine studies.

"He was a portraitist far beyond the average."

President of the Victoria zone of the Professional Photographers' Association of B.C., Dick Colby, 1419 Fairfield, said: "Apart from our own personal feelings, as an association we regret his loss. He always took the keenest interest in our work. We all had the highest regard for him, both professionally and personally.

"We were looking forward to his return to Victoria."

Phil Taylor, professional of Victoria Golf Club: "I have never heard Helmy say a bad word about anybody. I feel a sense of personal loss. He was ace-high with everyone—a real good fellow."

Mr. Taylor received a postcard from Mr. Goertz this morning, the first for some time. It began:

"Dear Phil, I guess you thought I died. I'm still alive . . ."

Why Not Write It Off?

EITHER in conjunction with the United States or independently (in the unlikely event of Congress declining Great Britain's request) Canada appears determined to waive this year's interest instalment on the post-war rehabilitation loan. Few Canadians acquainted with the facts of this act of assistance would wish otherwise. The question is, however, whether the Dominion is being generous enough. Would it not be far more realistic to wipe out the loan?

In relation to Canada's flourishing economy the annual payments of principal and interest mean very little, coming to about a tenth of the government's current domestic revenue surplus, and diminishing each year. Loss of both would have small effect on the budget. In the United Kingdom's case the amount of debt outstanding is not particularly important either, but the fact that it has to be paid in dollars is. If payments were due in sterling there would have been no appeal for a waiver of the interest instalment; it was only the precarious state of Great Britain's dollar balance that created this embarrassment.

Apart from the continuing trouble caused by the difference in currencies, is there any point in keeping Great Britain in thrall for half a century because of a loan which could very well have been made an outright grant in the first place? After all, Britain was fighting North America's war as well as her own—and bearing the brunt of it. This continent's sacrifices between 1939 and 1945—and after—were inconsequential compared with those made by the British people and the British Isles as a nation, and the burden of rehabilitation should have been ours as well as theirs, with perhaps some adjustment in proportion.

The $1,250,000,000 loan made by Canada in 1946 (on which the U.K. did not draw in full) was not to put money in Great Britain's pocket but to help get her industries back onto their feet. It was to rebuild factories destroyed by bombing and to reconvert others which had been turned over to war production, without whose output of munitions the war could have been lost for Canada as well as Britain.

The need for this assistance has passed into history but if the Dominion holds Great Britain to the debt the payments must go on for two more generations. If the Canadian government asked Parliament to write off the debt, with an explanation of the circumstances, it would probably have the support of all parties and of the country.

The UN Tests Itself

THE General Assembly of the UN took a rightful but grave step two nights ago in condemning Russia for her intervention in Hungary and demanding that Soviet troops be withdrawn from that country. The world, including even some hitherto closed Communist eyes, has been appalled at the brutality of the Russians in beating down the Hungarian people. So despicable has been Soviet terrorism that the U.S.S.R. made a mockery of its membership in the world body and of the charter which Russia signed. As a matter merely of self-respect the UN could do no less than pass the resolution it did.

The step was grave nevertheless because it puts the UN on the spot. The world organization has no means of enforcing its will short of the risk of war. Unless Russia contrives some deceitful semblance withdrawal of its forces, hardly worth the gesture for Soviet tricks are now well exposed, there is small likelihood of it acceding to the demand. What will the UN do then? It can scarcely afford to forget about the whole thing and turn to routine matters of small account. That would be an admission of utter futility and undo the authority which it is trying to establish through the example of a police force in Egypt. The physical situation is different in Hungary but the principle at stake for the UN is similar. It cannot with probity make fish of one and fowl of another.

The sponsors of the resolution indicting Russia would be aware of this; the assumption must be therefore that they have some compelling measure in mind to achieve Russian acquiescence. Sanctions could be invoked against the U.S.S.R., even the threat of ejection from UN membership. The latter would obviously be a drastic, perhaps risky, course to take; yet it could be extremely effective. The probability is strong that next to a global war, which presumably not even Russia desires, the Soviet Union would fear most being shut out from the world organization. Half its propaganda power would vanish if deprived of the public forum which the UN affords; its prestige in the eyes of Asiatic nations would be vastly diminished if the UN demonstrated its authority by banishment from its councils.

Some such action must surely have been in the minds of UN member states which lined up strongly to demand the withdrawal of Russian troops from Hungary. If not, and if the UN cannot back up its words with persuasive action of some kind, then it would have been better that the resolution had not been passed. A challenge has been issued to Russia, but the test is that of the UN.

Halibut Fisheries Scanned

BIT by bit Canada and the United States are beginning to piece together a substantial case history about the halibut fishing grounds on the Pacific Coast. There are gaps in the information, but each year sees some of them filled in. Under the aegis of the international Pacific Halibut Commission breeding grounds are tested, considerable numbers of fish tagged, and experimental work done with trawls in the main areas off Vancouver Island, the Queen Charlottes and north to Alaska.

Bulletins Nos. 23 and 24 of the commission, now off the presses, give an account of the results of 12 months' investigation. They are not exciting reading, but important and valuable to research into the life of the halibut. On the development of these and future enquiries must rest the answer to the main question: at what level can the fishery be perpetuated in a reproducing capacity, without danger to its survival as an important food source on this coast?

Working in harmony Canada and the United States long ago evolved a common code which with closed seasons, catch limits, area limits and so forth supplies practical supervision of the fishery. Of late more attention has been paid to equipment and fishing methods, because of the realization that the escapement of foundation stocks is as vital to the halibut as it is known to be to the salmon. Tagging, while persistent, has not yet given a complete picture of the halibut on the various breeding banks. Progress is steady in this direction, rather than fast. Each year, however, sees something added to the store of knowledge, and better regulation of the fishing seasons in consequence.

During 1955 approximately 10,000 halibut were tagged on their home grounds, and many previously marked were taken by the fishery and turned over for examination. For some years the process will need to be carried on, but at its end the case history of the highly-prized halibut may be as well known as is that of the several varieties of Pacific salmon.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

CULTURE is a many-sided word, like others in the English language. It can mean tillage of the soil, beekeeping, or a nice taste for the beautiful.

Cited with a capital C, the customary pre-emption of the term, it refers to the aesthetic side of life—the arts. That gives it a highbrow tone that honest devotees of the arts regret, but no one has managed to coin another world which covers the subject adequately and yet removes the snobbery.

The latter comes, of course, from the cultists on the fringe of artistic endeavour because of a presumed social status. They forget that culture has to do with the mind, not with a dress suit or a fat bankbook.

Emerson was seeing clearly when he said that culture is one thing, and varnish another.

J. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC, has come up with his idea of culture, or at least one facet of it, and his remarks disturb the Winnipeg Tribune. Mr. Dunton told a Toronto audience that the Grey Cup was a lovely manifestation of culture.

A lot depends on the audience; if he was speaking to football fans that explains everything. Speakers tend to please their audiences, you know. Anyway the Tribune, which finds it hard to reconcile the "shenanigans" of Grey Cup excitement with "culture," is afraid this means that the new Canada Council will dole out money for football spectacles.

Instead of, naturally, to promote ballet, literature, music, etc.

The poor athlete, so often deemed to be wood from the neck up. I don't know many footballers myself (the kind who mostly handle the ball not kick it, I mean) but there's a colleague along the hall who's pretty nifty at the game and he definitely has a head as well as two feet.

Remember the amazement when Gene Tunney was heard quoting Shakespeare? This may have been a publicity stunt, although why it should be is not too clear. C. B. Fry was a famous athlete who could quote Greek by the yard. No one dared call him uncultured, but then he was an amateur and thus his status was unimpaired.

I shall grant you that watching the Grey Cup game or, as the Tribune has it, making "hoopla" over it, is a bit different from enjoying, say, Picasso, Beethoven or Margot Fonteyn, but it doesn't do to jump to conclusions. Marlowe was killed in a street brawl and a stage play invariably bored John Buchan to sleep.

Carlyle had a word about culture, which isn't surprising since he had lots of words at his command. But he believed that the great law of culture was: Let each become all that he was created capable of being.

There seems to be sense, and justice, to this view. People aren't born equal in their endowments and so they can't all acquire the refinement of culture with a capital C. It is happier for them if they can, probably, for genuine love of the arts, pursued without ostentation, is an enriching experience. But they are not, to be disdained if they do not make the grade; if they are then they shouldn't be wheedled for patronage to support those who scorn them.

Personally I think that genuine culture is associated primarily with character, with fineness of mind and grace of spirit. This may not always reflect itself in close acquaintances with learning or artistic understanding, but it is none the less valid for all of that.

And a peasant, remember, may possess the soul of a poet. So also may a big, hefty Grey Cup lineman.

Letter from London

Back to the Bad Old Days

By RICHARD L. THOMAS, Daily Colonist Correspondent

BE GRATEFUL in Canada for central heating, gasoline and reasonably stable prices. We have had a cold snap—the herald of real winter—and I found myself sitting in a modern office in an overcoat and muffler. The reason was a 25 per cent cut in fuel supplies for the oil heating plant.

Across the road was a garage. There was a large notice draped on the pumps, "Regular customers only." As a regular I was granted two gallons. Behind me came a gentleman with a pleading tale of woe. He was a commercial traveller. Could he please, by the mercy of Allah, have three gallons to get him back to London (he was 60 miles away). He could not. Regulars were limited to two gallons. Casuals got nothing.

More pleading. Almost in tears he asked if he could not have just one gallon. The management's heart melted just about the moment that I was going to try and arrange for him to have a gallon on my account which I would do without later. The hose of the pump was put into his tank. Less than half a gallon had been delivered when it splashed all over the forecourt.

The exchange of compliments was no one's business. The liar paid up and went on his way with a sickly but triumphant grin on his face. He had a full tank and one can presume only that he thought it was made of elastic. But it indicates how controls and crises turns ordinary men into liars and cheats. This precious liquid does not go on the ration until Dec. 17; meanwhile it is virtually impossible to get petrol where one is unknown, except on the black market at $2 a gallon.

That was just a couple of days before the chancellor slapped another 12 cents tax on every gallon—and the oily boys slapped on another 5 cents to cover the additional transportation costs plus an additional cent a gallon to the retailer to make good some of the aggregate losses due to reduced sales. One comparatively small garage with its storage tanks full paid off its overdraft overnight with a clear $400 profit on the tax and price rise. The motorist now pays 90 cents a gallon, of which 42 cents is tax. Black market prices have risen in sympathy and are now around $2 a gallon. They are expected to reach $2.50 without coupons when rationing starts.

That is just part of the story. The fuel tax and distributor's rise will cost London Transport another $7,000,000 a year on its fuel bill. That means another fare increase. Road freighters and passenger fares by road coaches are expected to go up by 10 per cent. General transportation increases are likely to create a general hike in retail price levels of around 2 per cent.

The economic storm is just about to blow up. There will be wage demands to meet the increases and the increased demand for bicycles will not provide full employment for the men put off in the car factories; and the chancellor's threat of an increase in income tax in the next budget has not helped matters. Banks have been told to turn the screw tighter still, with the inevitable cut in retail sales and the level of employment.

On the international scale Britain is pledging dollar securities to bolster the level of the pound and exports are threatened by increasing freight rates and shortage of shipping.

Some indication of personal reaction is the fact that the Canadian immigration department has been dealing with three times as many potential migrants as six weeks ago. Australia has attracted about four times the average flow and there is going to be some pretty solid congestion unless the air companies can manage the crowd with a shuttle airlift across the Atlantic. Shipping companies can see little hope of dealings with the crowds.

There are, of course, some optimists. We are told that everything should be bright and sunny again sometime in April; that it is only a temporary squeeze and that the fierce precautions are just that: precautions; and that they will in fact do the trick. Increased petrol tax will keep up the volume of treasury revenue on depleted sales, more freight and passengers will be diverted to the railways and help to reduce the deficit on that nationalized octopus. Unemployment will not be on a large scale and within a month or two oil will be flowing in again without the need for dollar payments.

It could be; but optimism is not encouraged by my wife's grocery bill. Within a week of the increases being announced practically every item was up by half a cent. The over-all increase was around 12 cents on a week's groceries. Bread has gone up 1 cent a loaf. The newsagent regrets that he will have to increase his delivery charges. The milkman is contemplating a delivery charge.

Garages are discharging fitters and pump attendants because of reduced [illegible] 200 miles a month many cars will take a year to cover the distance usually covered in a month, with a consequential slump in repairs, maintenance and ordinary servicing. Oil-fired generating stations are converting to coal, which means that there will be some empty grates by the time winter really comes in February.

It is a pretty grim picture. It will be grimmer if Canada or the United States balks on the loan interest waiver. But we can still laugh. We opened an American newsmagazine. An Esso advertisement had the modest headline: "Oil Speeds Man's Thoughts." We could add that it lubricates political controversy but does not subdue all the dangerous sparks.

The Age of Apathy

(From The Canadian Doctor)

FOR a long time now we have been hearing of the murderous week-end records on the roads. The number of deaths varies a bit from week to week, but they keep on coming. There is always a great deploring of the carnage, in the newspapers, on the radio, at the inquests, and in the law courts. There are the pleas for care and courtesy on the road. More moving, if more grim, there are the news photographs of beaten-up motor cars blood-spattered and corpse-laden.

What, though, is being done about it all?

The most serious moves have come from private individuals, such as the originators of the recent medical enquiry into traffic accidents.

The only signs of official awakening are the giving out of a few more tickets by the police and the handing out, at long last, of slightly stiffer penalties by the judges. There are laws to control this problem. If it is not being controlled, that must mean that the laws are not being enforced.

Time was when the people would rise up and demand that the laws be enforced. The days of public outcry are gone. The whole atmosphere framing the traffic problem is one of public apathy. An apathy that says nothing will or can be done about it.

Apathy is a sign of our times. This might be called the Age of Apathy.

It is usual to speak grimly of nuclear annihilation, and shrug the shoulders about civil defence. We admit the deplorable lack of teachers in our schools, but we cannot seem to want to find the money to make it worth while for a young man or woman to teach.

This, in a country which we like to speak of as one with a great future. What of Canada's future, despite her unlimited resources, if Canada's youth is only half-taught?

We express horror at the unchecked growth of lung cancer, but do little or nothing to prevent it or even to attempt its earlier discovery. Even doctors go year after year without sparing five minutes for a chest X-ray, while they blithely go on chain smoking, as if they had never heard of Evarts Graham.

We laugh at shameful abuses of the electoral laws by politicians whom we then place in power to rule over us. In our own profession, voices are raised in defence of immoral and dishonest practices, while the medical politicians take the cynical line that "the best way to get along is to go along."

Perhaps we should stop worrying about communism and do a little real worrying about democracy.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

ONE of the namely art critics of our time said recently with regard to an exhibition of modern art that it contained many thought-provoking paintings and drawings. This surely demotes art into an entirely new field. Art has something greater to do than provoke thought.

Thinkers, schoolmasters, politicians, parsons, mathematicians and other scientists can provoke thought. But artists have always been supposed to be a class apart from such plodders. By means of a gift that distinguished them from ordinary mortals they have been able to speak directly to the inner spirit of man without the intervention of the process of thought. By the creation of songs, tunes, poems, paintings, sculptures, buildings, books, or the mere repetition of the art works of others, as musicians, singers, actors, performers, they could reach some inner depths of all men, deeper than the mind, an unexplored region of the human structure, unapproachable save through the senses. Artists were capable of thus speaking to all men, rich, poor, clever, stupid, savage or civilized, without having to penetrate through any man's thinking process.

Maybe this is why modern art, in all its forms—whether the verse of T. S. Eliot or the paintings of Picasso or the music of Hindemith—finds so little response, except that of puzzlement, amongst much the larger area of the public. When some Greek hillbilly came down out of the mountains and saw the Parthenon soon after it was completed, he doubtless saw it with emotions and understanding the equal of that of a modern archaeologist at least.

It was only the scholars of any period who resented new forms in art. Today it is the public that protests. It may be that the thought-demanding aspect of modern art rules it out as art, and its practitioners from the rank of artist. Perhaps they are technicians, some sort of laboratory assistants in the new age of technology.

Hopes Unveiled

Tories Map New Plan For Victory

OTTAWA (CP)—A sweeping new Progressive Conservative platform—one that would require huge federal expenditures—took shape Thursday and pinned to it was the hope of one critical group that it may finally lead the party to an election victory.

"Workers and adherents of our party," said the Toronto Danforth Conservative Association, "are tired of being cast in a role of permanent opposition and expect in the forthcoming election to be provided with a platform that will show why a Conservative government should be elected."

That was what the party's 163-member policy and resolutions committee tried to do in presenting the convention with 21 pages of proposed resolutions and principles for adoption.

J. F. Shaw, Vancouver delegate, thought the proposal to seek permanent United Nations police force machinery "very unwise." It might lead to world differences on how the force should be employed.

William Cummings of Calgary believed the party proposal to back flexible price support for agriculture a violation of free enterprise.

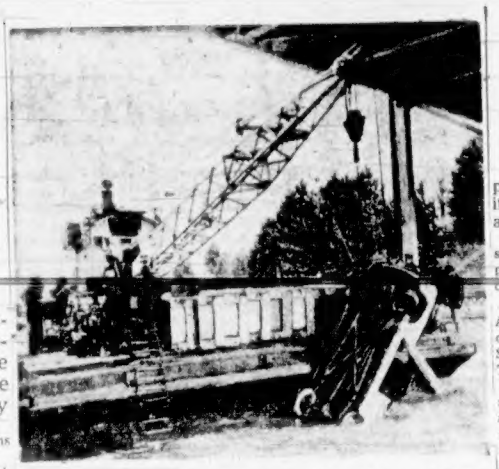
These issues were resolved with most of the proposals getting convention approval with little or minor change. At one point, the delegates appeared to be heading for a major debate on family allowances, but convention chieftains moved quickly to head it off.

Mrs. Grace Hartman of Sudbury, Ont., demanded to know why family allowances had not been mentioned in the proposed platform. The party, she said, should make clear its position on the issue.

Nova Scotia's highways minister, G. I. Smith, who headed the sub-committee on social benefits, quickly explained the party is not against the allowances but is opposed to increases, feeling more urgent increases, such as for old-age pensions, are needed at this time.

There were planks in the platform for almost everyone. It promised an immediate comprehensive hospital insurance scheme, higher old-age pensions for the needy and lower taxes by elimination of treasury surpluses. Basic exemptions from personal income taxes would be raised if possible.

There would be higher pensions for war veterans, deductions from taxable income for hospital insurance premiums and larger deductions for medical expenses.



Although he managed to escape from his car after it had plunged into Welland ship canal at St. Catharines, Ont., George Honsberger, 24, of Hamilton, later drowned in icy waters of canal. Attempting to outrace a rising bridge, the youth ducked past the flagman in his little car and went part way up the bridge before slipping back.—(CPC)

Plane Hunt On Again

VANCOUVER (CP)—Improved flying weather is predicted for today and the RCAF said Thursday night it hopes to be able to send up 54 search planes into the air in the hunt for a lost airliner and its 62 occupants.

Heavy cloud stalemated the search for four days but the prospect today is for only scattered cloud.

The hunt for the Trans-Canada Air Lines plane which vanished over southern British Columbia Sunday night took to the ground Thursday.

Sqdn. Ldr. George Sheahan, searchmaster, went to Chilliwack and Hope to organize ground search teams which will move into the mountains at daybreak when the planes are also expected to take off here.

An RCAF spokesman announced the searchmaster's departure from here said "something will have to be done" to speed up the hunt for the North Star airliner.

Except for a few hours Monday the snow-covered mountains 100 miles east of here, believed to hold the secret to the plane's fate, have been weathered in.

Search officials clung to the possibility that a last-minute manoeuvre by the plane's skipper, Capt. Allan Clarke of Vancouver and Montreal, might have saved some of the 59 passengers and three crew members from death.

"If the pilot had any opportunity at all to pull the plane up as he approached the ground, many of those aboard may have survived" an RCAF spokesman said.

However the slow progress of the search operation spread fears that survivors might die of exposure, starvation or lack of medical care.

Conservatives Hear Leadership Hopefuls

the provinces, for free competitive enterprise, for efficient administration in office, for recognition of the differences that exist in Canada and which with tolerance and understanding can be made to serve the ends of a wider freedom and an enriched Canadian culture.

"Give me the opportunity and we will challenge the imagination of all Canadians and, above all, the imagination of young Canadians," he said.

He followed a scholarly address by E. Davie Fulton, leadership candidate from Kamloops, B.C., in the climatic final night session of the convention, which will end today with voting on the leadership.

WEARY OF LIBERALS

"Our opportunity arises from the fact that many thousands of Canadians are weary of the present Liberal administration, with its legend of invincibility, its arrogance, incompetence, and stupidity," Fulton said.

Fulton, who was the party's rules expert during the contentious pipelines debate in Parliament last session, said continuing "the Liberal party in office "constitutes a continuing menace to the very basis of Canadian democracy and to all our rights and freedoms."

"Never in the history of a free parliament since the time of Charles I and Cromwell has any government attempted to throttle debate before it had even begun," he said. "It remained for a Liberal government in 1956 to tell Parliament in the bluntest of terms: you shall only be allowed to vote and then go home."

RHODES SCHOLAR

Fulton, a Rhodes scholar, declared at another point in his speech:

"We must remove the greedy and clutching hand of the government from the pockets of the taxpayers. The taxpayer must be left with as much as possible of his own earnings with which to discharge his social and moral responsibilities to provide for himself and his family, and to have something left for saving and investment in the development of the Canadian nation.

"Let's bring paper salaries and take-home pay a little closer together for a change."

General Pearkes Steals the Show

By TOM GREEN
Special to the Colonist

OTTAWA—Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP, stole the show as he seconded the nomination of John G. Diefenbaker, MP, for party leader at the Progressive Conservative convention here last night.

Greeted with ringing cheers, which continued throughout his speech, General Pearkes recalled he nominated Mr. Diefenbaker in 1948 when Hon. George Drew was chosen as leader.

"Although he made an unsuccessful bid for the leadership in 1948," General Pearkes declared, "John Diefenbaker has, since then, widened his interests. As chairman of our external affairs committee, he has travelled extensively visiting, in addition to Europe and the Middle East, Australia, New Zealand and the new nations of Southwest Asia. He is a familiar figure at NATO and at the General Assembly of the United Nations. He is a confidant of the statesmen of the Commonwealth.

"From one end of Canada to the other, workmen, farmers, storekeepers, widows and veterans have said to me 'You must elect our man on the 14th.' As a vote-getter he has no equal. His ability assures sound policies, his personal integrity, dedicated leadership.

"Steeped in the lore of the prairies," General Pearkes continued, "as a young man he became associated with many of the builders of Western Canada from whom he received inspiration."

In turn, John Diefenbaker had worked on the farm, taught school, obtained his degree at the University of Saskatchewan and was called to the bar. During the First World War he served in the trenches as an infantry officer with the Canadian Corps.

Russian Charges to Be Aired

UN to Debate 'Subversion'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—A General Assembly debate on Russian charges that the United States is engaged in subversive activities in Soviet satellite countries was approved Thursday by the United Nations general committee.

As the Russians pressed for an airing of their charges against the U.S. two members of the U.S. delegation said they favor UN diplomatic and economic measures against Russia if all other steps fail to end Soviet intervention in Hungary.

Senators William Knowland (Rep. Calif.) and Hubert Humphrey (Dem. Minn.) made the comments during a Press Club luncheon.

Knowland, stressing he was speaking for himself and not for his delegation, said the whole fabric of peace was endangered by Russia's refusal to comply with UN resolutions concerning Hungary.

If the Russians do not give in, he said, "I would favor sanctions."

Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Vassily Kuznetsov said in the general committee that the U.S. was guilty of subversive activities in the satellite countries.

"The attempt at a counter-revolutionary rebellion in Budapest was a direct result of . . . the dispatch from abroad of spies, saboteurs, etc."

U.S. delegate James J. Wadsworth said the U.S. would vote in favor of airing the Soviet charges since it was "willing, indeed anxious, to have the facts made known from this free forum. . . ."

Britain's Sir Pierson Dixon said Britain would not raise any objection to including the Russian complaint on the agenda.

Meanwhile, a British spokesman told a press conference that the Egyptian government was making life in Egypt "impossible" for foreign nationals, including British residents.

"That situation cannot be allowed to continue for very long," he said, but gave no indication what action Britain might take.

trades licence system, although he said all council recognized there were inequalities that had to be dealt with.

"But it was a vote against Mr. MacMillan . . . complete support of the city manager system and of Mr. Wyatt personally," he said.

Ald. Macmillan said he was "certainly pleased that Ald. Smith is going to get the opportunity to lower property taxes for the taxpayers in 1957—I hope he's very successful."

He said he thought he would "take a year off and find out who my friends are and at the end of that time I'll assess the situation."

The success of Ald. Smith in decreasing taxes, he said, would determine "whether I will feel it is necessary to institute the economies I have sought."

Hugh Ramsay said he had stood for the revision of the trades licence system on a more equitable basis "and this has been endorsed by the voters. I also stood for revision of property qualifications and night council meetings so more capable candidates can present themselves to the electorate . . ."

DOWELL PLEASED

Ald. Dowell was pleased with the hall vote because "it indicates the people want some sort of a working arrangement together."

The parking and traffic problem will come very much nearer a solution in the next year, using the Faustman report as a "grand nucleus" he said.

The city manager system and Mr. Wyatt were "completely vindicated" by defeat of Ald. MacMillan, he said.

McEWEN PLEDGE

A proud and triumphant Elmer McEwen, though still somewhat nervous over his shaky lead on lawyer William Moresby, promised to justify the faith of voters in him.

Mr. McEwen, who came out strongly in his campaign for amalgamation, said he was "especially pleased with the municipal hall vote."

He predicted that within "the next year or so" there will be a new business tax in the city and that will raise even more money than Ald. Smith promised the voters.

Patrick Birley, who entered the campaign for the one-year seat only a week ago yesterday, said he was "pleasantly surprised to see so many people voted for me (1,699) after such a short campaign."

NO RECOUNT NOW

Mr. Moresby said that "at this stage (before the final count, when he was 24 votes behind) I am not asking for a recount."

He said he felt Mr. Ramsay and Mr. McEwen "were of the calibre to make excellent aldermen . . . and I'm not ashamed to be beaten by Mr. McEwen."

Colonist TV Trap a Hit

The effectiveness of the 25-cent Colonist trap, in bringing back popular channel 5 to [illegible] has "knocked the bottom out of the commercial trap market."

This was admitted yesterday by TV servicemen and antenna manufacturers in Greater Victoria.

For instance, Sims Laboratories of Sidney announced during its TV show on CHEK-TV last night that it will give away lead-in wire to anyone who writes in for it.

Sims also announced that it has devised a new antenna, called the Chekmate, a "lazy eight" antenna which it claims brings in channels 5 and 6 by itself and provides a channel 5 signal that is "better than ever before."

The company said this antenna was "priced in line with other aerials."

However, spokesmen for Sims and the other two local dealers in [illegible] traps, Hygrade Radio and Western Agencies, agreed that "many people are just leaving it lay because they don't want to pay a large amount of money."

* * *

The Daily Colonist described Tuesday how to bring back channel 5 in five minutes with lead-in wire, called a stub in the TV industry. A razor blade and screwdriver are the only equipment needed.

Most servicemen and other dealers said yesterday that they had sold "an awful lot of wire" since the story.

They said the home-made remedy was not successful in all cases — estimates ranged from "well below 50 per cent" to as high as 70 per cent, failures being due to such traditional problems as age of the set, lack of adequate inside traps, type of antenna and condition of wiring.

"It's not a complete answer to the problem," said Gil Haines, Butler Bros. Ltd. "But it's worth 25 cents to try."

Reg Conrod, Electronic Service Engineers, said he thought "the idea is nuts . . . It reminds me of people who buy a set of rabbit ears and expect to get good reception."

* * *

Manufacturers said lead-ins do work, but insisted that "traps do a better job, and there are three types — the stub type, the band-pass and the band-pass with a switch — and any one of these with an antenna change will do even better."

[illegible] are slightly over 58 inches in length, but some servicemen had heard of cases where set owners strung out anywhere from 30 to 100 feet of wire and had KING-TV back.

Sets with lead-ins face the problem of a channel 5 signal that fades, then grows stronger, which means they still may lose the station occasionally.

But almost all members of the local TV industry agreed that everyone in Greater Victoria can get channel 5 back and only a minority needs more than the 25-cent (or free) lead-in.

Gales Sweep Scotland, Cause Four Deaths

LONDON (AP)—Gales which reached 112 miles an hour spilled snow over Scotland Thursday and caused at least four deaths in the British Isles.

The weather bureau predicted a possible return of snow, hail, sleet and high winds during the night.

Roads were ice-bound in Edinburgh and snow filled roads near Dumfries and in the Devil's Elbow region of Scotland.

The Orkney Islands were cut off Wednesday from either plane or boat traffic.

Enough to frighten most persons out of a year's growth is sight of a deadly, year-old Indian cobra poking his head from a skull at Miami, Fla., serpentarium. A foot long, the cobra even at this tender age can inflict a lethal bite. He will reach a length of six feet fully grown.—CPC.)

Short Reprieve

Freedom Dash By Calf Foiled

Freedom ended last night for a spunky two-month-old heifer calf.

The calf was in a pen at the slaughterhouse of the Chung Brothers, near Burnside and the Island Highway. Lassie, a black Labrador, apparently took pity on her plight, and nudged a gate open for the heifer's getaway.

About 6 p.m. the heifer took off, but made the mistake of heading south.

She was spotted about 12.30 a.m. by S. Pickback, who phoned police to say the 2½-foot-high calf was on Craigflower by Banfield Park.

The hunt was taken up by Constables John Rickerby, Douglas Grant and Gordon Bennett—but the heifer had traveled. They found her half a mile away on Esquimalt Road by the Atom Lumber Company.

But the calf was not through. She took off again—this time across the railway trestle by the Johnson Street bridge — and headed east.

She was finally caught by Constables Rickerby and Bennett, helped by R. E. Johnston, 533 Atkins Road, and George West of 175 Helmcken.

They put her for safe keeping in the police car lot on Fisgard.

Yesterday morning she was literally taken in tow by pound-keeper Doug Rose, who kept her until the slaughterhouse reclaimed the calf late in the day.

Laundry Fire Not Serious

Fire which started from the smoke stack and burned through the roof into the sawdust bin caused little damage at Economy Steam Laundry on John Street Wednesday night.

The conveyor system used to move sawdust to the furnace was expected to be in operation this morning.

'Mr. Nanaimo' Wins Easily

Maffeo Elected Mayor

PETE MAFFEO

NANAIMO—Pete Maffeo, a former pit boy in the Nanaimo coal mines, was elected mayor of Nanaimo by a whopping 2,065-960 majority last night.

He defeated Ald. Mrs. G. L. (Happy) Hall, a university graduate who in addition to several years' aldermanic service, has served most leading women's groups in the community and the chamber of commerce.

At press time last night the re-election of Ald. George Bryce with 2,189 votes, was assured and former alderman Phil J. Piper, 1,590, was elected.

Edward Blackburn, 1,339, retiring chairman of the parks board, won the third aldermanic seat in a nip-and-tuck battle with lawyer Ronald F. MacIsaac close behind him with 1,185.

School teacher Jack Parker polled 1,167 and John Souchuk trailed with 520.

The mayoralty became open when Mayor Earle Westwood resigned because of pressure of duties in his new position as provincial minister of trade and industry. The new mayor will serve the one-year unexpired portion of his term.

Mayor-elect Maffeo, after his election was conceded by Ald. Hall last night, pledged that co-operation will be the answer to the future progress of Nanaimo.

The new mayor, who is affectionately known as "Mr. Nanaimo," is a businessman, sportsman and defeated Liberal candidate in the provincial election in September, and has built himself a reputation for organization which earned him the Order of the British Empire. He led the Air Raid Precautions organization in Nanaimo during the Second World War.

He started as a pit boy in Nanaimo coal mines and then became a plumber's apprentice at $4 a week.

He is interested in soccer, baseball and boxing and has done more in the community than anyone to see the causes of sport furthered.

He is credited with setting up a "model civil defence organization," has spearheaded many charity drives and the Maffeo auditorium in the new health centre in Nanaimo pays tribute to his work.

Mayor-elect Maffeo was born in Nanaimo 60 years ago and was educated in Nanaimo and Ladysmith. He served with the Royal Canadian Engineers in the First World War. He is a charter member of the Nanaimo Gyro Club and was a leader in the playground work of that organization.

It was his first bid for civic office.

Island Election Roundup

Saunders Duncan Leader

A newcomer to Duncan's civic politics, James Saunders, headed the polls for election of two aldermen yesterday.

The president of a Duncan moving firm polled 464 votes to oust senior Ald. R. K. Cairns from his seat. Ald. Cairns drew 267 votes.

Ald. James LeQuesne, Duncan second-hand dealer, was re-elected with 273 votes.

School board ballots for election of one trustee from two candidates will not be counted until Saturday night when North Cowichan ballots are counted.

Mrs. Isabel Tarlton, Duncan's sitting trustee of the school board of School District 65, Cowichan, who is running for re-election against former board chairman Jack Long, said she will protest the holding of the ballots. She said she will seek a clarification of the School Act so it is not capable of double interpretation.

There was a very light vote at Parksville and three new commissioners will sit on the village next year. They are Eric Winch, 217, A. J. Lock, 162, and Thomas S. Bonar, 152. Mrs. Josephine Bloom was defeated with 142 votes.

None of the sitting commissioners, Ray M. Young, chairman, William Fulther, and Fred J. Banks sought re-election.

Commissioner H. Chester Good was way out in the lead with 161 votes in Qualicum village elections yesterday to choose three commissioners from six candidates.

Frank Holloway, a newcomer to the commission, was elected with 99 votes and Commissioner Ewart Sanders was re-elected with 94 votes. Defeated were C. M. Darkis, 87, Henry R. Fullerton, 72, and Wilfred A. Tegart, 65. Commissioner Donald MacMillan didn't seek re-election.

Forty per cent of the Qualicum ratepayers voted, but because many property holders are summer visitors it amounted to a 75 per cent vote of residents.

Port Alberni passed a $485,000 sewer by-law by a whopping 1,048 to 148 majority.

All three sitting aldermen were re-elected with Ald. William Goddard leading the poles with 910 votes. Other aldermen were J. R. Dalton, 887, and Jack Perry, 884.

Defeated candidates were W. J. Carr, 338, J. B. Feser, 286, and Gustav Frigftad, 280.

Named trustees to represent Port Alberni in School District 70, Alberni, were George Folkard, 1,003, and Brian Cole, 663. George McKnight polled 450 votes.

In Port Alberni 35.3 per cent of the eligible voters cast ballots.

All three sitting aldermen were elected at Alberni.

Ald. James Trebett led the polls with 370 votes. Ald. Terry Neale, 345 and Ald. Fred Bishop, 326, were the others elected. Runar Nafe polled 132 votes.

Only 26 per cent of Alberni's 1,627 voters cast ballots.

There were no nominations for two school board seats. They will be filled by appointment.

M. Payne, 63, Victor Cole, 55, and J. Forbes, 27, were elected to the Ucluelet village commission. Defeated candidates were G. Griffin, 24, and G. Edwards, 21.

A 24-year-old cafe operator led the polls among six candidates seeking three village commission seats at Campbell River.

Kenneth N. McDonald polled 150 votes; high school teacher Walter Fogg, 503, and Commissioner Barnard Box was re-elected with 435 votes.

Defeated candidates were Commissioner Joseph Bundy, 348; Leonard Polson, 181, and Charles Granholm, 146.

Out of 1,493 eleigible voters 827 cast ballots.

Courtenay gave approval to two money by-laws.

One for a $50,000 drainage system won a big 542-to-75 majority and a $40,000 by-law for Courtenay Recreation Association hall extension and swimming pool improvements was approved 428 to 191.

Ald. Sid F. Williams was re-elected with 442 votes. Others elected to Courtenay council were Ald. Thomas Sims, 296, and A. H. "Sandy" Strachan, 250.

Defeated candidates were G. R. Merrill, Harry Harris, Lyle McKenzie, Stanley Everett and Ben Hughes.

Ben Hughes defeated Robert Lay for a one-year term as trustee for Courtenay School District 71.

R. H. Blackmore was elected by acclamation to a two year term as school trustee.

Comox approved a $13,500 fire equipment by-law 206-to-27.

Ronald Ellis, 149, Mrs. Mary Cliff, 129, and Douglas E. Newson, 122, were elected to the Comox village commission to replace Commissioners Jack Noel, Jack Nickel and Oscar Kidd, who did not seek re-election.

Defeated Comox candidates were David Aiken, 115, A. L. Johnston, 110, Earl Dickinson, 66, and James Calnan, 55.

Cumberland and Ladysmith civic officers were all named earlier by acclamation.

Welfare Bonuses Recommended

Payment of Christmas bonuses to city welfare recipients will be recommended to city council at its next meeting by finance committee.

The bonuses, $5 to heads of families and $2 to single persons, will cost the city about $750, the city comptroller estimated—20 per cent of the total expense. The province will pay the remainder.

Workers Influx

Cowichan Foresees School Shortage

DUNCAN—A critical shortage of school accommodation faces Cowichan district when the Crofton pulp mill is in full operation.

Chairman of the school board building committee, George Whittaker told the Duncan Chamber of Commerce the pulp mill workers would boost the number of school children in the district by 300.

"Using all the accommodation we can get we will still be four rooms short," he said.

To a suggestion that Fairbridge School should be offered as a base for the forestry department of the Hungarian University, which is coming to B.C., Mr. Whittaker protested:

"If the school board did not have the classrooms at Fairbridge it would require 10 new schools and cost $350,000 to replace it."

Bruins Win with Rookie Goalkeeper; Beliveau Gets Three, Gump Boots One

Evidence continued to pile up last night that three National Hockey League clubs are off by themselves in a fight for the first three places while the other three will have to decide the fourth spot in the Stanley Cup playdowns.

All three leaders won, Boston [illegible] extending their unbeaten streak to three games by edging Chicago Black Hawks, 3-2; Detroit Red Wings snapping a two-game losing streak by getting by New York Rangers, 2-1, and Montreal Canadiens whacking Toronto Maple Leafs, 6-2.

All three winners were playing on home ice.

ROLLINS TOUGH

Playing without Terry Sawchuk, their ace goalkeeper, and with 23-year-old Norm Defelice playing his first game of the season, Bruins had plenty of trouble with the hard-trying Hawks, particularly with goalie Al Rollins.

Rollins was spectacular as he made 40 stops, 34 of them before Jack Bionda scored his second NHL goal with only nine second left in the second period. And Bionda's 40-foot blazer hit a Hawk skate before it got by Rollins.

That tied the score at 1-1 and Boston's Vic Stasiuk and Jack McIntyre exchanged goals before Real Chevrefils got the winner, slapping at a shot by Fern Flaman and turning it by Rollins.

Defelice, spare goalkeeper for Hershey Bears, hadn't seen any league action previously this season. He stopped 27 of 29 shots.

FOUR POINTS

Jean Beliveau broke loose to the delight of more than 13,000 fans at Montreal. The big centre scored three goals and assisted on another as Canadiens broke a 2-2 tie with four third-period goals.

Canadiens were at full strength for the first time this season as Maurice Richard returned to action after an elbow operation. The Rocket celebrated with the 468th goal of his NHL career and two assists.

Beliveau's splurge boosted his point total to 40—14 goals and 26 assists. Dickie Moore got his 15th goal of the season, his eighth against the Leafs. And, for the seventh time, it came [illegible]

ENDS FAMINE

Ted Lindsay scored Wings' first goal before the game was two minutes old, scoring while Dean Prentice was penalized by whacking in the second rebound during a scramble.

Danny Lewicki tied it late in the second period but a penalty to Lou Fontinato and a mistake by the brilliant Lorne Worsley gave Wings the winning goal in the third period.

Worsley slid out for a pass-out but couldn't get the puck under control and Earl Reibel only had to push it into the open goal.

Russians Endorse Olympics

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union put its official stamp of approval on the Melbourne Olympics Thursday and warned other nations that Russia is out to cut even wider swaths through future contests.

The formal endorsement came from N. Romanova, chairman of Russia's Olympic committee, who wrote in Pravda:

"The 16th Olympic Games were conducted in an atmosphere of friendship, mutual respect and co-operation among sportsmen from the various countries."

He wrote aside from "unworthy behavior of the so-called 'new Australians' recent immigrants, the spectators greeted all of the participants with unusual warmth, regardless of the country they represented."

"Soviet sportsmen . . . must keep in mind they lagged behind other countries in a number of sports. Soviet athletes and trainers gained considerable experience in Melbourne and our task is to generalize this experience and use it for further development of Soviet sports."

Getting little elbow room in front of Montreal Canadiens' goal, Rudy Migay (14) of Toronto Maple Leafs is hemmed in by a host of Canyen players including goalie Jacques Plante, extreme left; Doug Harvey, centre, and Don Marshall. Canadiens defeated Toronto in this game, 3-1, and followed up last night with a 6-2 triumph over the sagging Maple Leafs.—(CPC)

Hungarians May Tour Canada With Hearts or Hotspur XIs

Hungary's national soccer team has been invited to tour Canada next summer, William Simpson, council member of the Football Association of Canada, met Thursday with the Canadian-Hungarian Federation to map plans for the tour.

He said the team would be welcome to join the Canadian National League if its decides to stay in the Dominion.

The Hungarian team, composed of members of two other teams now touring Western Europe, is reported to have decided not to return to its strife-torn country.

Simpson also announced that the Football Association probably will accept an offer by Hearts of the Scottish League to tour with the Hungarians providing Tottenham Hotspur of the English League declines an earlier invitation.

IT BEATS ME

INNOCENT ABROAD: Al Campanis, Brooklyn scout who accompanied the Dodgers on their recent Japanese tour, tells this one on himself in the current issue of the Sporting News.

The Dodgers were leaving the park after playing their last game in Tokyo and enthusiastic fans were waving and shouting "Sayonaro," which is the Japanese equivalent of "aloha" or "au revoir." In other words, a sentimental come-again good-bye.

Campanis noticed one almond-eyed youngster of about 12 standing off to one side, and looking a bit forlorn. "Sayonara," Campanis called cheerfully.

* * *

Bob Beckett, who came to the Cougars with the highest of recommendations, left unnoticed and unmourned after failing to get goal or assist in 15 games. Sent to Quebec Aces in return for Ray Powell, Beckett stepped off the plane, got into uniform and promptly scored two goals and two assists as Aces beat Three Rivers, 5-3.

* * *

NO WONDER: Only 2,868 fans, who paid $1,887.50, watched the 1915 Grey Cup final, but those were the days when football was really football. The same kind of action today wouldn't bring in many more fans or much more money. Nobody, it seemed, wanted the ball.

Sammy Manson of the undefeated Hamilton Tigers and Hal DeGruchy and George Bickle of the Toronto Rowing and Athletic Association waged a private battle from the start.

Toronto punted on first down no less than 22 times, and had the ball kicked right back 10 times. Tigers punted 15 times on first down and Toronto kicked the ball back 12 times. Each team punted 36 times for a record of 72 punts for one game. That's one that should, it is hoped, stand the test of time.

* * *

Wayne Anderson of the Cincinnati Redlegs probably has the softest time of any of the major league baseball trainers. The muscular Anderson attends murder trials as a hobby and recently sat in on his 64th, all of which is likely to discourage the Reds from crawling on the rubbing table unless there are witnesses about.

* * *

JACK HAS SUPPORT: Both general manager Lynn Patrick and coach Milt Schmidt of the Boston Bruins believe that Jack Bionda, who, incidentally, scored his second NHL goal last night, will develop into a top-notch defenceman.

"He's an athlete," explained Patrick. "He may be awkward-looking, but he does his job. My dad, Lester, who used to be a lacrosse official in his youth, claims Bionda is the greatest lacrosse player he has ever seen. He's just one of those fellows who rises to the occasion when a job has to be done."

All of which explains why the former Shamrock star is not with the Victoria Cougars, as had been hoped when Boston drafted him from Toronto Maple Leafs.

* * *

Shortest and most forceful pep talk of the season is credited to veteran Steve Brymnak of New Westminster. A quiet type, Brymnak got to his feet just as Royals were leaving the dressing room for second-period action against Vancouver Canucks, looked around, and suggested simply, "Let's win." The idea caught on, Canucks lost, 2-0.

* * *

ONE GAME BEST: I was inclined to think differently at one time but now must agree with those who feel it would be a sad mistake to have the finalists play more than one game to decide the winner of the Grey Cup.

It might be a fairer method of deciding the better club, and it would be more remunerative, to play a total-point series but the impact of that one "big game" would be gone. The whole football season leads up to that one climactic game and much of the color and appeal would be lost if it wasn't a sudden-death Grey Cup final. Besides, not many could afford to go to two games and seeing half a Grey Cup final isn't at all satisfactory.

Puck Fans Can Aid '500 Fund' Tonight

With the blessing of Cougar coach and manager Colin Kilburn, a number of volunteers from three organizations will make collections during the game.

Led by Mrs. Lynn Middleton, volunteers are from the Junior Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Women's Auxiliary to the Royal Victoria Yacht Club and the Gyrettes.

Cougars vs Royals Tonight; Chance Heinrich Will Play

Fortified by four days' rest, Victoria Cougars will battle it out with New Westminster Royals at Memorial Arena tonight as they seek to regain third place in the Western Division of the Western Hockey League.

Vancouver Canucks, one point ahead, will have to contend with the first-place Seattle Americans, who appear to have revived after a slump.

WAIT ON WHITNEY

Cougars are not yet certain whether or not defenceman Arnott Whitney will arrive from Fort William in time for the game but they have some hope that defenceman Lionel Heinrich may be able to play.

Heinrich strained a back muscle in Calgary last week and had to miss Monday's game against Brandon. It was feared that he might be out for two weeks but his injury has responded to treatment better than expected and there is a chance he may be able to play tonight.

Heinrich, who has been showing steady improvement and who turned in some fine games on the Prairie trip last week, will take another treatment this morning and if his back doesn't bother him when he tests it this afternoon by skating, he will be in the line-up.

Whitney, sent by Boston Bruins from Hershey, took his family to his Fort William home. If all goes well, he may be able to arrive in time for the game. He is expected not later than tomorrow, in time to play at Seattle.

NO CHANGES

Coach Colin Kilburn said last night that Roy Partridge will take a regular turn on defence in any event. Otherwise, the line-up will remain unchanged.

Cougars have won five and tied one of 11 games since Nov. 18 although injuries and a tough schedule have seen them drop their last three. In all five defeats, they have been in the game until the last minute, three times losing by the odd goal, and Kilburn hopes that the breaks are about due to work for his club.

Cougars have shown steady improvement and looked as good as any club in the WHL until weariness and injuries set them back in the last three games, causing a scoring slump which has seen them score only once in each of their last three games.

ROYALS ON MOVE

Royals have won four and tied one of their last seven games to get within striking distance of the Americans. They are reported at full strength for tonight's game and with their veteran Bobby Love - Gordie Fashoway - Blinky Boyce line apparently back in form and canny Max McNab making a second line always dangerous, they won't be any soft touch.

Tiremen Stretch Hoop Lead; Morrisons Upset by Fuelers

Rose Fuel scored its second victory in eight starts in the Senior "B" Men's Basketball League last night, upsetting Morrisons, 65-54, at Victoria High School gym.

Big Paul Simpson led the attack with 17 points, while Al Rittich and Ken Stokes scored 11 points apiece. Jake Jacobs and Gary Ball each had 11 points for Morrisons.

NINTH STRAIGHT

In last night's other game, Dickinson & Dunn rolled to its ninth straight victory with a 69-45 win over Drakes. Johnny Clark and Norm Baker led the winners with 18 points.

Stars of Day Dim . . .

. . . Claims Net Promoter

Kramer Admits Aussies Should Trounce U.S. Netters

By OSCAR FRALEY

SYDNEY, Australia (UP) — Australian bookies have posted their stars at 10 to 1 or better as favorites to whip the United States in the Davis Cup challenge round and pro tennis promoter Jack Kramer heartily concurred Thursday with the one-sided odds.

"It is a shame but our fellows haven't got a prayer against the Australians," Kramer said as he sat in his hotel room directing his Australian pro tour.

"Our stars of the moment are very dim ones and there are no new ones glittering on the horizon. Vic Seixas, our top man, is over the hill and he certainly doesn't figure to win any matches."

Then, man by man, he went over the weaknesses of the United States team which will play India at Perth this weekend for the right to meet Australia in the challenge round.

"Our No. 2 man, Herbie Flam, has no grass court game," Kramer said. "He would be tougher on hard courts but his serve isn't hard enough for grass. Sammy Giammalva is a good competitor but he doesn't have the equipment to be a player of Davis Cup calibre."

Nor, according to Kramer, are the approaching years likely to be much kinder to the U.S. amateur hopes.

"There are very few kids with real potential," he contends. "Ron Holmburg of Brooklyn and Earl Buchholtz of St. Louis have the best potential but they don't get the competition they need.

Australia is "loaded" with young hopefuls and the land down under should rule amateur ranks for years, Kramer continued.

But it is a different matter among the pros. "Pancho Gonzales has four more good years ahead of him and we're hoping to pick off an Australian amateur champion each year to go against him," Kramer said. "Gonzales is only 28 and he will demonstrate on this current Australian tour that he still is the best in the world."

Meanwhile, the U.S. is going to have to "get mad" about its tennis much like the alumni when a college football team goes back, according to big Jack.

"Baseball and football spend a lot of money in promotion to get the kids' interest in the game," he said. "Tennis is doing the same thing but it has a long way to go and until it sells the sport we're going to be in bad international shape."

Dodgers Get Littlefield

Robinson Traded to Giants

Three-Year Contract Pleases Redleg Pilot

CINCINNATI (UP) — Birdie Tebbetts signed a new three-year contract to manage the Cincinnati Redlegs Thursday and said he "hoped to repay the compliment" by leading the team to the National League pennant in 1957.

"I've reason to believe this contract makes me the second highest paid manager in baseball," the 45-year-old Tebbetts said. "That is only my estimate of course but it's my way of expressing my complete satisfaction with it."

Tebbetts' new contract is believed to call for $40,000 a year, a manager's salary which would be topped only by Casey Stengel's estimated $90,000 pact to pilot the world champion New York Yankees. Paul Richards received about $55,000 from the Baltimore Orioles but he doubles as general manager in addition to managing the team on the field.

In a Moscow apartment, famed Soviet hunter Prokopy Bogachov chats with lion tamer Margarita Nazarova while a huge Asian tiger sprawls like a contented pussycat on the couch. Saanich Seeks Say in Library

By DAVID BROWN

Among the six questions which Saanich voters will be asked to approve tomorrow is the suggested elevation of the municipality from the position of tenant to partner [illegible] the library board.

Advantages of such a move were brought to the attention of [illegible] Coun. Leslie Passmore who [illegible] is Saanich's non-voting "observer" on the board.

Saanich, he pointed out, has become the second largest user of the library and possibly the largest user of associated services such as the bookmobile which takes volumes to rural areas.

[illegible]

Proposed basis of operating costs will be on the basis of [illegible] cents per capita with the balance on a circulation basis, instead of the straight circulation basis used in the past.

According to figures compiled by Coun. Passmore and comptroller-treasurer John Tribe, Saanich's share in the library would be $48,302, based on 1954 costs, instead of the $46,266 actually paid. This is an increase of $2,036 as a result of the merger.

The annual costs, Mr. Tribe pointed out, would of course vary as population and circulation [illegible]

[illegible] years which is the balance of the term of the debentures issued by the city for the addition of the library.

Apple Decrease

A sharp drop in B.C.'s apple crop this year was blamed yesterday on the severe frost and winter conditions experienced in November last year and early February.

Trade and Industry Minister [illegible] Westwood said this year's crop was estimated at [illegible] boxes or 32 per cent less than in 1955.

Market Likes New Details On Uranium

TORONTO (CP) — Steels led in[illegible] the mining section Thursday as the stock market recorded its first advance of the week and strongest gain in six sessions.

Algoma Steel, which leaped ahead $10.50 last Thursday, jumped $7.50 and closed at $11[illegible]. Last week's rise which sent the stock to $111 began a flood of rumors concerning the company but they were later discounted.

The uranium advance was credited by most observers to the Canadian government's lifting of the veil of secrecy surrounding the industry's production and reserve figures. Observers said this action would enable uranium mining companies to more accurately assess the values of their properties.

Pronto had the best percentage gain as it climbed 75 cents to $6.25. Northspan added 60 cents at $5.45. Algom and Gunnar added fractional gains among the higher priced uraniums.

Besides steels, banks and refining oils had strong gains among industrials. Toronto - Dominion, Montreal and Royal were ahead between one and 1¾ points among banks with the other issues gaining fractions. Trans Mountain jumped three points in domestic oils after touching a year's high at [illegible].

Western oils had gains ranging to [illegible] cents and losses confined to [illegible] cents but there was [illegible] between the [illegible]

Strength in Rails

NEW YORK (UP)—Stocks rallied under the lead of selected steels, rails, chemicals and motors.

Best performers in the major groups included Du Pont which at its top was up more than 3 points, Chrysler up more than 2, Illinois Central up nearly 2 and Allegheny Ludlum Steel up more than 2.

The specialty steels outperformed the steel leaders. Coppers, except Magma off more than 2, moved higher. Shell led the oils up with a 2-point rise. Safeway Stores issues were at new highs, the preferred up [illegible].

Domestic corporate bonds were narrow and moved with a few convertible industrials up a point or so in moderate trading. Over the counter U.S. government bonds were marked down as much as [illegible] point in quiet dealings.

Algoma Jumps Again

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges Thursday shook off the mild decline of this week's three previous sessions and closed with scattered industrial gains ranging [illegible] a point. Trading was quiet.

Algoma jumped [illegible] points and Stelco 1[illegible] in steels. Aluminum gained [illegible] while International Nickel and Noranda climbed more than 1 in base metals. Calgary Power paced utilities, adding 2.

In papers International moved up 1¾ and Abitibi [illegible] Great Lakes slipped 1. Pipe lines were strong as Trans Mountain soared [illegible] and International [illegible] Canadian gained a point to lead refining [illegible].

[illegible] in [illegible] among [illegible] [illegible] Banks were mixed [illegible] [illegible] narrow range with [illegible] [illegible] Among [illegible] Canadian Industries [illegible] [illegible] and Canadian Vickers [illegible].

Mines were [illegible] and narrow. [illegible] [illegible] New West Amulet and Mining [illegible] improved [illegible] Hudson Bay [illegible] Fundy Bay and Bateman Bay eased under [illegible].

Mines Irregular

VANCOUVER — Changes were few in a quiet session. Midwest Cop moved up 10 cents at [illegible] and Western Plywood found buyers at $17[illegible]. Woodward's held firm at $11[illegible], while Consolidated Mining was ahead at $2[illegible].

Mines were irregular. Sunshine Lardeau at 24 cents and Grandal at [illegible] both lost ground but Bralorne was firm at 1.35 and Bethlehem at 1.95.

Vantor added [illegible] cents among oils.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices were irregular as overseas interest in coarse grains was quiet. There were reports, however, of small sales of flax to both the United Kingdom and Continent.

Oats and barley trade was mostly domestic.

Rye dispersed selling orders for American account.

Cash Grain Close

[illegible]

CHICAGO (AP)—Most grains lagged under a renewal of light but persistent liquidation.

Soybeans dropped the most, losing a few cents at times on disappointment over the rate of soybean exports. Soybean oil declined in the cash market.

New crop wheat futures acted independently firm although backing down late in the session. Poor crop prospects gave these futures support.

Old Owner Hit

NHA Loan Policy 'Unfair'

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Many owners of property think it distinctly unfair that while builders of new homes are eligible for low-rate insured mortgage under NHA, buyers of existing homes have to go into the public market for their loans.

They have to pay at least 1 per cent more than they would under NHA and instead of having to put up only 10 per cent in cash they have to make a down payment of at least 30 per cent.

Various sound arguments exist why this should be so, but some financial experts believe the time may be coming when the objections will have to be faced.

As things stand the Canadian chartered banks may lend up to 90 per cent on a new home, because the loan is guaranteed by the government. They are not, however, permitted to use any other residential real estate as collateral because no government insurance is available.

In his annual address to shareholders of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, A. C. Ashforth, president, said this week that some form of insured mortgage for existing dwellings similar to the NHA mortgages for new construction would be desirable.

There is no fundamental reason why the buyer of a new house should have available to him better terms than the buyer of a good existing dwelling, he said.

The existing discrimination was causing a distortion of the loan market and he believed that a ratio of higher percentage insured mortgages for existing dwellings would broaden the housing market.

Mr. Ashforth also termed the present 5½ per cent interest on NHA loans as out of line with the market. Banks, pension plans, and insurance companies were not interesting in lending money on those terms.

CONTRACT SIGNED

Stanrock Uranium Mines Ltd., with properties in the Blind River area, is reported to have secured a contract with El Dorado Mining and Refining for $95,000,000 of uranium concentrates.

The contract runs from November 1957 to March, 1963, and the company expects it will require financing of $24,500,000.

Drilling and shafting at the property is proceeding with a work force of about 300 men.

INCREASE COMING

Directors of Molson's Breweries indicated that the company's dividend rate would be increased by 20 cents a year in 1957.

Molson's at present pays $1.20 in quarterly instalments of 30 cents. It was stated yesterday that an increase to $1.40 a year was well within the resources of the company and would be considered by the directors in February.

PIPELINES BUSY

Deliveries of Canadian oil through pipelines continued to grow during October when the total was 23,819,540, an increase of 19 per cent over the 19,926,454 barrels handled in October, 1955. The pipelines total for the first 10 months of 1956 is up 23 per cent on the corresponding period of 1955.

NEW BAUXITE PLANT

Aluminum Ltd. is to spend $33,[illegible] on a new bauxite plant at Mackenzie, British Guiana. It will produce 250,000 short tons of alumina a year.

The plant will be additional to the one at Jamaica which at present supplies the Kitimat smelter with its alumina.

Government Unveils Secret Of Huge Uranium Reserves

OTTAWA (BUP)—Canada's reserves of uranium ore total 225,000,000 tons with an uranium content of 237,000 tons, Atomic Energy Commission of Canada Ltd. announced on Thursday.

Atomic Energy officials predicted that there would be enough reserves and production of uranium available from Western nation sources for large-scale nuclear power programs in the free world for about the next 30 years.

Canadian uranium production by the end of this year will be at the rate of 4,000 tons of high grade concentrate a year.

The rate is expected to increase sharply in 1957 and by mid-1958 it is estimated that production will be between 11,000 and 15,000 tons per year, AEC said. The gross income from this production will be approximately $300,000,000 per annum.

By 1958 AEC said more than $300,000,000 will have been spent on preproduction work, buildings, equipment and services by the industry.

The industry, AEC estimated, will employ some 12,000 persons. The total payroll will run about $60,000,000 a year.

It is expected United States will release her figure in the near future. It is also expected that other uranium producing countries such as South Africa, Belgium, France and Australia would follow the United States and Canada in making their reserves and production of uranium public.

It is believed that Canada's figures on uranium ore reserves and production prior to 1956 were not made public because nearly 90 per cent of the uranium used until then was used for nuclear weapons and it would give Russia a good indication of the extent of the Western world's stockpile of nuclear weapons.

Publication of the figures [illegible] [illegible] planning [illegible] [illegible] power programs from [illegible] ground [illegible] power [illegible] from power reactors [illegible].

The information will also be of practical use to industries planning nuclear power programs and to universities in their teaching of nuclear science. Officials pointed out that industry for the first time would be able to gauge whether [illegible] [illegible] for nuclear energy [illegible] [illegible] than those of conventional power.

Loops Planned For Pipeline

VANCOUVER (CP)—Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line Co., announced Thursday that it is considering plans to increase the daily capacity of its oil pipeline to Vancouver from Alberta to 240,000 barrels by August 1957 and eventually to more than 300,000 barrels a day.

In a statement issued here the company said present plans being considered include partial "looping" of the line by paralleling certain sections.

The company says it will reach a daily rate of 240,000 barrels with completion of permanent pumping stations at Jasper and Blue River, Alta., next year.

With a view to the probable development of the system to a capacity exceeding 300,000 barrels daily, the next step under consideration would include a start on a looping program with a concentration of pumping capacity at larger pump stations [illegible] [illegible] rather than a multiplicity of smaller pump stations on the single original 24-inch line, the statement added.

Contracts Awarded For Cement Plant

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Lafarge Cement of North America Ltd. awarded four contracts valued at more than $2,000,000 Thursday for construction of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Ltd.

Construction is scheduled for completion next fall with cement production to follow in early 1958.

Dollar Sales Make Record For Britain

LONDON (Reuters)—For the first time in history Britain this year has earned more than $1,000,000,000 in the United States and Canada, Sir W. [illegible] [illegible] chairman of the British Dollar Exports Council, announced Thursday.

Full trade figures for 1956 [illegible] show that North America had been Britain's biggest single export market this year, he told a press conference here.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] for an extensive tour of [illegible] markets in North, central and south America.

Despite increasing earnings, he said there is no room for complacency. In 1938 Britain provided more than 10 per cent of United States imports, while this year, the best since the war, she [illegible] account for only [illegible] per cent.

Britain [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] per cent of Canada's pre-war imports, but now supplied only [illegible] per cent of Canadian foreign purchases.

Jewett Becomes V-P For Cominco Mines

MONTREAL (CP)—Wm. Jewett has been appointed vice-president [illegible] [illegible] Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd., announced Thursday.

He joined the company in 1927. He was appointed manager of mines in 1948 and assistant general manager in [illegible].

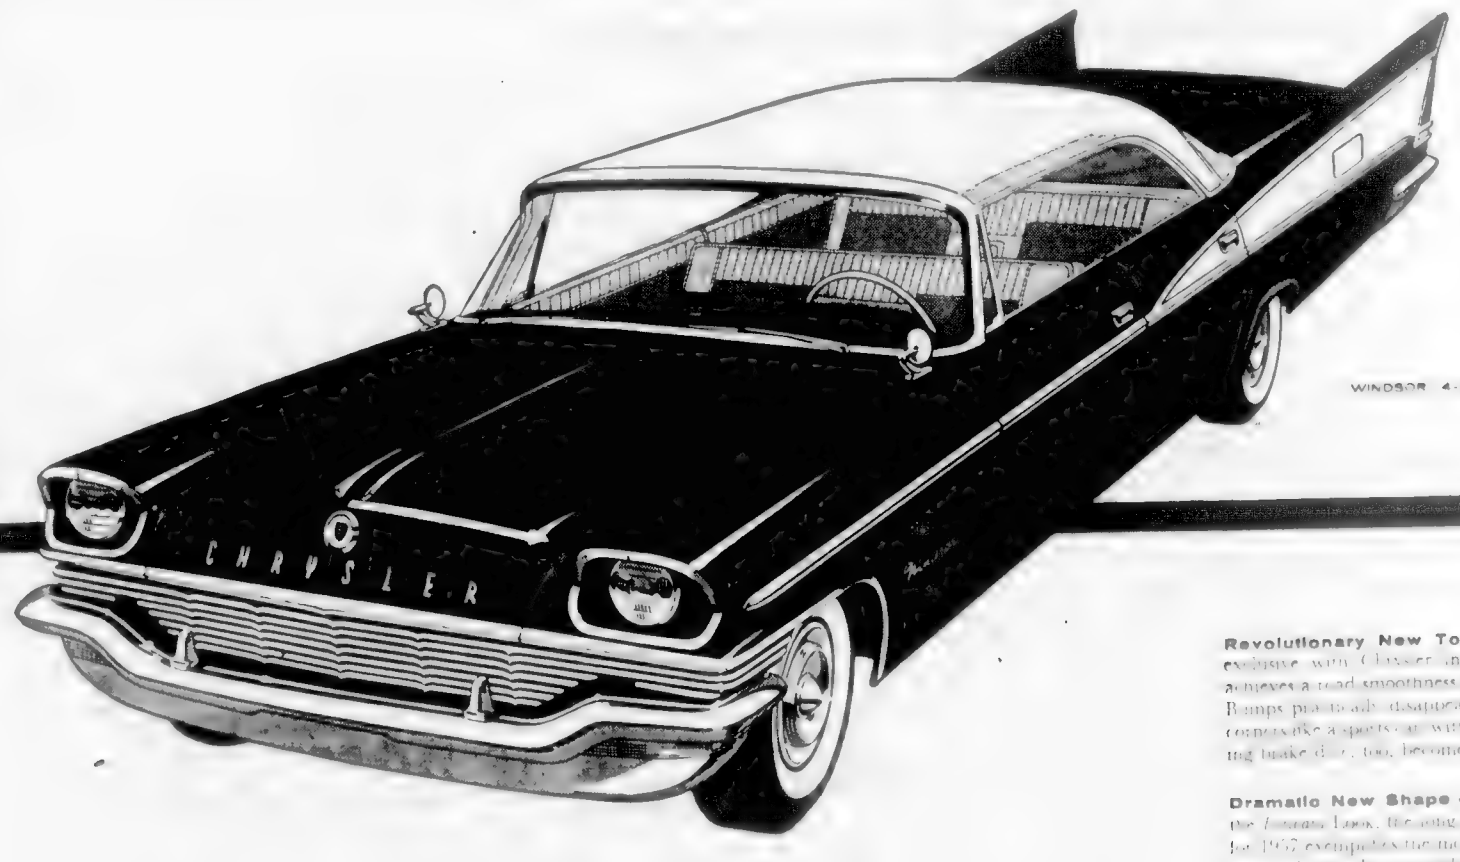
FOR 1957



WINDSOR 4-DOOR HARDTOP

Here is a motorcar that will send your pride soaring . . . an automobile of such breathless beauty and unmatched engineering excellence that you will admire it more every mile you drive. > Totally new . . . with ultra-smooth Torsion-Aire Ride, new flash-ahead Torque-Flite automatic transmission and still greater power . . . the brilliant Chrysler for 1957 truly knows no rival. Only in price can it be compared to lesser cars. > Come in and drive it!

CHRYSLER CORPORATION OF CANADA, LIMITED

Revolutionary New Torsion-Aire Ride—exclusive with Chrysler in the low-cost field—achieves a road smoothness never before possible. Bumps practically disappear. And you can take corners like a sports car without sidesway. Annoying brake dive, too, becomes a thing of the past!

Dramatic New Shape of Motion. Pride of the Forward Look, the long, rakishly low Chrysler for 1957 exemplifies the most modern ideal in motor car design. It's inspired from its eager, forward-thrust front profile to its dashing upswept tail fins, every soft-flowing line reflects a look of beauty in motion!

Thrilling New Push-button Torque-Flite Shifting. As standard equipment, your new Chrysler brings you the speed-finger getaway and amazing economy of the world's best fully automatic 3-speed torque-converter transmission. And, as you would expect, this most advanced of all automatic drives has modern Chrysler-pioneered push-button controls.

Lots of Transportation, Not Many Votes

Shoppers Ride Free, Don't Bother to Vote

Taxis Report Drop While Polls Open

Civic election officials seriously doubted yesterday afternoon that all the persons using free transportation to the polling station were voting—and so did city taxi companies.

The Real Estate Board of Victoria offering free transportation service to voters with nearly 300 cars available through members at [illegible] was swamped with calls from [illegible] a.m. [illegible] several member firms and [illegible] offering free rides said their cars of fleets were "pretty busy" [illegible]

At the same time city taxi companies noticed a definite drop in their business during voting hours and [illegible] free transportation might have been the cause.

A C & C taxi official said business was "much lighter than usual and it might be that there were a number of Christmas shoppers using the free transportation instead of taxis to get downtown."

A very definite drop showed up in Blue Bird company books and they said all of it couldn't have been caused by the weather."

NEVER STOPPED

Four girls answering free-transportation calls in the Real Estate Board office "never stopped all day," one of them said at 4 p.m. There had been "hundreds of calls — we couldn't possibly keep a record."

But at the polling station, voting was dead slow. Heavy rain was blamed for keeping voters away in the morning. Only 386 of the 20,779 registered voters had cast ballots by 10 a.m., an hour after the voting began. By noon, 1,139 had voted and election officials were glumly looking forward to a vote of around 30 per cent, even though the weather was clearing.

At 2 p.m. 2,421 had voted — compared with 2,[illegible] by [illegible] p.m. in last April's Point Ellice bridge vote, when the turnout was the greatest in 20 years of recorded voting [illegible]

[illegible] the 10 hours of voting.

A total of 6,504 had cast ballots by the time the polls closed at 7 p.m., or only 31.3 per cent.

The balloting was without incident.

Election

Sidney Ousts Leaders

SIDNEY — Sidney Ratepayers Association gained control of the village commission last night when the three association-sponsored candidates scored a smashing victory by ousting two sitting commissioners and a former commissioner.

Dr. C. H. Hemmings, medical practitioner, led the polls with 352 votes and his two running mates, typographer A. A. Cormack (246 votes) and immigration official T. A. Aiers (240 votes) were both elected to fill the three commission seats falling vacant this month.

Commissioner M. R. Eaton was defeated with 207 votes as was Herbert Pearce [illegible]

Vivian Cowan and Joseph Bogeit still have a year to serve on the commission.

BITTER FIGHT

The [illegible] election was one of the bitterest campaigns since the village was formed [illegible]

New Telescope Plans Submitted to Ottawa

Quarter Million Project

Federal authorities in Ottawa have been asked to approve construction of a [illegible] telescope which [illegible] hope to build at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory in Saanich.

If an official go-ahead is given by Ottawa the proposed telescope will be the third largest in Canada.

A [illegible] model of the telescope, only one of its kind in the world, was shown to reporters yesterday by Dr. R. M. Petrie, observatory director, and Dr. A. McKellar, a member of the observatory staff.

LOCAL DESIGN

[illegible]

If approval is given, it would take about three years to build the telescope and install it.

[illegible]

MORE VERSATILE

[illegible]

It would magnify subjects about a thousand times and would be 60,000 times as powerful as the human eye in gathering light.

The observatory's staff has been working on the plans for about two years.

"The design of this tube is very similar to that of the 200-inch telescope at Mount Wilson," said Dr. Petrie yesterday.

But he was quick to point out Ottawa's approval to the project must be won before anything else is done.

What's Cooking! — By Frances Thompson

Fisheries Department Sends Oyster Recipe

FRANCES THOMPSON

"Fair exchange is no robbery," so goes the proverb. And so it is through my colleagues at the Department of Fisheries in Ottawa; it is a [illegible] to pass on from time to time their suggestions. Here's one of them which you might very well clip and keep for the forthcoming festive season. It would be eminently suitable for a buffet supper. The accompanying introductory remarks amuse me greatly — listen if you will — or rather read on: "Oyster Pie is a delicious main dish for a holiday buffet supper. Picture it for yourself . . . flaky, golden brown crust covering the top of a favorite casserole.

"Decorate it with pastry petals in the shape of a poinsettia; beneath the crust in a smooth, creamy sauce are succulent oysters interspersed with colorful bits of red pimiento, green pepper and celery. The English (don't forget I'm quoting) are fond of meat and fish pie of all descriptions and oyster pie is traditionally an English dish, etc. . . ." My expert friends in Ottawa proceed to revamp a recipe which originated in [illegible] and here is the up-to-date version.

OYSTER PIE

(6 generous servings)

One pint oysters, ½ cup diced celery, ½ cup diced green pepper, ¼ cup butter or margarine, ⅓ cup flour, 2 cups liquid (oyster liquid plus milk), 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, your favorite pastry.

Examine the oysters carefully for bits of adhering shell. Simmer them in their liquid for about three minutes or until they plump up and their inner edges show signs of ruffling. Drain and set aside, reserving the liquid. Cook the celery and green pepper in butter for few minutes until tender. Blend in the flour and add the combined oyster liquid and milk. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add the oysters, pimiento and seasonings, pour mixture into a greased casserole and top with a fairly rich pastry. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees, till crust is lightly browned — about 15 minutes.

In the meantime we must eat as economically as possible. I couldn't find any sole yesterday so I bought fillets of whiting instead and cooked them as follows . . .

BAKED FISH FILLETS

(4 servings)

Four fillets of fish, ¼ pound butter or margarine, 1 egg, dry bread crumbs, salt and pepper.

Rinse the fish quickly in cold water. Break the whole egg on to a [illegible] and beat it slightly [illegible]. [illegible] bread crumbs on to a piece of waxed paper. Dip each fillet of fish into the egg so that it is covered on all sides, then quickly lift it over into the bread crumbs and piece by piece, press the crumbs well into it.

Put the butter or margarine into a largish baking pan and put it in fairly hot oven to melt and brown slightly. Watch carefully that it doesn't burn. Then take each coated fillet, one at a time, and lower it into this hot fat. Lift and turn to other side. It's a quick searing process. [illegible] Sprinkle with salt and pepper and bake for about 15 minutes, basting frequently. By this time all the fat should have been absorbed. Yes, you could do the same thing in a frying pan, I suppose, but it doesn't seem to work out so well.

* * *

Here comes a literal quotation pertaining to a recent remark I made:

"I do not agree with you putting the rum or brandy in the Christmas cake before it is cooked. When you take the cake out of the oven and while hot, pour the rum over it. Don't ask me how much. I just put the bottle and take the cork out. Oh, boy! Then smell good. The flavor does not cook out of it. So says C.P." And so the argument carries on. Since it is a controversy, more cooking point and certainly not a matter of life and death, let's keep the argument going!

TRICK OF THE DAY

Thank you, Mrs. W. P. [illegible]. When you wash out your refrigerator put a few drops of vanilla in the water. It rids it of any musty smell!

Egg Rings

Slice hard-cooked eggs, remove yolks and mash them and season with salad dressing, salt, pepper, curry powder and if desired onion juice. Place sliced whites [illegible] rounds of buttered bread or arrange on salads and fill centres with the fluffy seasoned yolk. For a colorful effect [illegible] the egg white pale green by soaking for a few minutes in water or pickle vinegar which has been tinted with green food coloring. Drain well [illegible] with yolk; garnish with bits of canned pimiento.

LOW-CALORIE DELIGHT: For a holiday treat that is easy on your weight as well as your purse, try this recipe for Egg Nog Cookies.

Cream ⅓ cup butter, gradually add 1 cup sugar; beat until light and fluffy. Add 2 eggs, 2 tsp. rum flavoring and blend well. Sift together 3½ cups sifted flour, ½ cup nonfat dry milk powder, 2½ tsp. baking powder, ½ tsp. salt and ½ tsp. nutmeg. Add dry ingredients and 2 tbsp. water alternately to creamed mixture; beat until just blended. Divide dough in thirds; wrap in waxed paper; chill in refrigerator about 2 hours. Roll dough on well floured board to ⅛-inch thickness. Cut with ornamental cookie cutter; place on greased baking sheet using well floured spatula. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Bake in hot oven (400° F.) about 5 minutes. Makes 6 dozen.

Covered Look Replaces Bikinis

French and Italian swim suit designers have been clamoring for sometime against the little wisp of material fore and aft known as the bikini. But this year according to the latest word it's to be an all-out struggle.

"Younger women wear them because they are afraid of being called prudish and old-fashioned," she said. "Slightly older women then put them on because they think that unless they do they will stand no chance of competing with the younger ones. It is vicious."

Slow Roasting Ensures Delectable Moist Turkey

Proper cooking is an important factor in turning out a moist, tender roast turkey. Too high a temperature tends scorch and blister the skin. The recommended method of cooking eviscerated (drawn) ready-to-cook turkey is slow roasting uncovered at a moderate temperature of 325 deg. F. Cooking times for the eviscerated bird range from ... hours for a 6 to 8-pound stuf-

Here's a recipe for oyster stuffing to give a new lease on life to the bird which reigns over holiday repasts.

Heat Embarrasses Santa

Anyone would expect Santa Claus to have every child as a friend, but for Santa this can be embarrassing. When the temperature rose to near 70 degrees in New York City, the old gentleman used to Polar cold was nearly prostrate. So Margaret Knox ... came to his rescue, mopping his brow— and at the same time telling him what she expected in her Christmas stocking.—(UPI)

'I Like Killing'

'Murder Normal for Me'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A gangling transient who boasts that he has killed 11 persons said Thursday: "I'm not crazy. I'm perfectly normal. I know I'll get the gas chamber but that's part of the game."

Stephen Nash, a 33-year-old ... was picked up on ... his possession last week.

Monday ... said he was ... from ... California ... where he told police of killings in that part of the state.

"Killing people is normal for me," said Nash during an interview in his maximum security cell at the county jail. "If you like to kill, you go on killing. If you kill 10, you want to kill 20. If you kill 20, you want 30, then 40, then a hundred. It's like being a millionaire who doesn't want to stop with his first million."

Nash faces murder charges in ... recent knife slayings of ... boy who was found dying under a Santa Monica pier, and John W. ... 27, a hairdresser whose body was found in his Long Beach apartment.

Last Monday, Nash was taken to San Francisco where he directed police to a car submerged in the bay with the body of Robert A. Eche, 27. Nash said he knifed Eche Aug. 19. Nash also was taken to Oakland to tell police of the Dec. 8, 1955, slaying of William C. Burns, whose body also was found in San Francisco bay.

Nash said he killed a 15-year-old Mexican boy at Oakland but the body was not found.

"If those Oakland cops had any sense they would have found that body in the reservoir up north," said Nash. "They just didn't want to get their nice clothes dirty."

The Quest for the Atom

By Arthur Holly Compton

'Would We Blow Up the Earth?'

[illegible]

One weekend in July of [illegible] I broke away from the Met lab in Chicago and all its atomic research for a quick refresher at our summer cottage in northern Michigan.

[illegible]

Oppenheimer reported by long distance phone that he and his group had found something very disturbing. How soon could he see me?

I met him at the train the following morning.

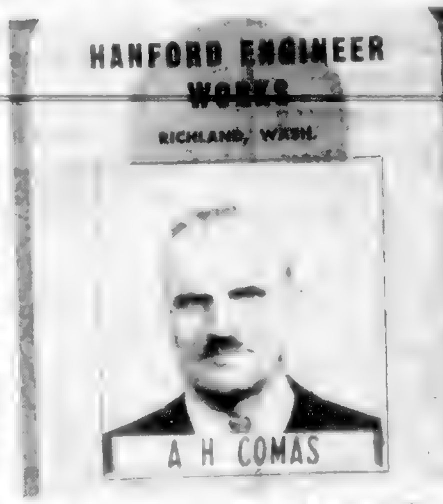
[illegible]

TERRIFIC TEMPERATURE

[illegible]

Better to accept the slavery of the Nazis than to run a chance of drawing the final curtain on mankind!

[illegible]



Official identification badge used by the author at Hanford, Wash., in 1944 under the pseudonym of A. H. Comas.

[illegible]

[illegible] Greenewalt asked for the [illegible]

We were building a huge production at Hanford, Washington. What would the cooling water, returning from the nuclear reactors into the Columbia River, do to the fish so important to the Northwest?

Immediately experiments were undertaken. It was [illegible] that extreme precautions [illegible]

Steps were initiated to [illegible] over 80 square miles in Tennessee that became the Oak Ridge laboratory.

My wife and I moved to Oak Ridge about Dec. 1, 1943. My duties were equally divided between Oak Ridge and Chicago. In this area I went by the name of Holly. At Hanford I used the name A. H. Comas.

By January 1944 the work at Los Alamos was beginning to take the centre of the stage. The basic elements of the design of the bomb had already been worked out.

At last plutonium from Hanford and U-235 from Oak Ridge began to arrive in substantial quantities. I held in my hand a heavy lump of plutonium, gold plated to protect me from the alpha particles. Its temperature was so high from its own radioactivity that it almost burned my fingers.

[illegible] enough [illegible] had been received, the test bomb was ready.

On the morning of July 16, 1945 [illegible] Chicago [illegible] with remarkable light effects. That evening a phone call came from Oppy.

"[illegible]," he said, "that we caught a very big fish."

This was the culmination of the technical aspects of the wartime atomic task. In [illegible] successively the scientists, the government, and American industry [illegible] the work [illegible] had been made.

The atomic bomb that we had been envisaging had been built. It had exploded with the expected tremendous energy. We had forged the weapon. Success. Yes. The result awesome, terrifying.

"Carpet The Kitchen"

By Maurice Humber

That isn't as [illegible] as it sounds. [illegible] customer of ours out in Saanich put down some of our Wall-to-Wall in his kitchen and after 6 months none of his enthusiasm has worn off. Carpeting the kitchen was "his" idea in the first place [illegible] didn't like waxing floors. And their 95lb golden retriever made the cleaning [illegible] more difficult. Now they vacuum the carpet once or twice a week, [illegible] spots [illegible] spills promptly. The carpet 12 by 14 was cut to fit the kitchen exactly, even extending into the hallway, basement stairs and back door. They also put heavy rubber padding underneath. The carpet wasn't tacked down, but finished with smooth edge (that's like a [illegible]) and it can be removed for commercial cleaning. Our client [illegible] may be a bit of a butter-fingers, adds "You save on dishes too. If you drop 'em there's a cushion [illegible] no breakage." [illegible] We have 9 [illegible] of lovely imported hard twist Wilton [illegible] $8.95 sq. yd. Apart from the above reasons for carpeting the kitchen, you can surprise your friends no end ... they [illegible] think you're brilliant ... or just plain nuts.

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

Get to that there'

Parents, do you worry about the effect of television commercials on your children? Well, you should listen to this. An independent survey has been made of ... children who went with their parents to eat at a Chicago restaurant.

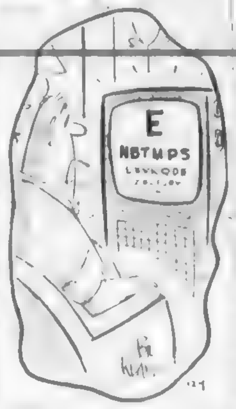
In less than one week, yes far less than seven days, 22 children were seen eating only the crusts of their bread because, and we quote, "the man on TV said it's good for your teeth."

What's more, [illegible] buffalo steak in three days after [illegible] mentioned it on TV.

And can you believe this? One little girl wanted only a glass of water because she was dieting to become "the size I ought to be."

[illegible] your children may go through life [illegible] where the yellow went.

Now we return you to our regular program.



"Have trouble reading the bottom line? Then stop in tomorrow for a check-up at Sure Fit Optical Shop."

Apprentices Call

Youth Training In B.C. Vital Need

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks announced yesterday that a meeting would be held early in the new year in an effort to increase the number of apprentices in the province.

"If we in the West are to retain our ability to produce we must train the men to do it," said the minister.

He said a public hearing would be held in Vancouver Jan. 14 to receive representations and consider ways and means of attracting more youths to apprenticeship training.

Carpenters have already made representations that the minimum wage for apprentices be 50 per cent of the journeyman's wage instead of the present 25 per cent.

GREATER THAN EVER

The minister said the actual number of apprentices undergoing training today is greater than it ever has been but that the impact of automation and the general economic expansion of the province was going to require a far greater number of highly skilled journeymen than are likely to be available.

"It is up to us to provide the trained men and not have all the better jobs go to persons brought in from other countries because we can't supply the journeymen," said Mr. Wicks.

The minister said all parties concerned are invited to attend the meeting and written submissions may be sent to the chairman, apprenticeship branch, 411 Dunsmuir Street, Vancouver 3, B.C.

Colonist Ex-City Editor Expediter for Refugees

A former city editor of The Daily Colonist is today on his way to Vienna to arrange for the transport of the forestry faculty and students of a Hungarian university to British Columbia.

Fred H. McNeil, now a public relations officer with the Powell River Co., accompanied by Dean George S. Allen of the University of British Columbia forestry faculty, left Vancouver by plane last night.

They will consult Canadian government officials and heads of the Hungarian faculty in Vienna and outline plans for the re-establishment of their school in B.C.

The refugee faculty members will be housed in buildings provided by the Powell River Company, but it is not yet known if they will remain at Powell River or become integrated with UBC.

The Hungarian groups will arrive in Vancouver on a special train next month. In the party will be 28 professors, 285 students and more than 30 families, with some 100 children.

Rare Stamp Bequeathed To Archives

A rare Vancouver Island stamp valued at some $1,000 has been bequeathed to the provincial archives by a former San Francisco philatelic dealer.

This stamp is a 5-cent Vancouver Island imperforate which is lightly cancelled, has large even margins, and has a corner of an adjoining stamp attached proving its authenticity.

Provincial archivist Willard Ireland said the stamp which was donated by the late Ross O'Shaughnessy, is one of the rarest of British North American stamps and is frequently listed in catalogues at a value of $1,000.

Just in Case

Diefenbaker Is Easy To Pronounce

OTTAWA (CP) — In case John Diefenbaker becomes leader of the Progressive Conservative party this week, and hence opposition leader in the Commons, a lot of people will want to know how his name is pronounced.

"It's easy," he says, "It rhymes with Studebaker."

The first four letters are pronounced as one syllable "deef" and not "di-ef." Some persons wrongly pronounce the last part of the name as "backer," instead of "baker."

Some erroneously believe his family is of German ancestry. It isn't. His father's forebears came from the Netherlands around 1815. His mother's family came from the Scottish highlands.

Fed-Up Londoners Coming to Canada

Canada has a great attraction for Londoners, according to Mrs. R. Pollard of Victoria, who has just returned from England.

Mrs. Pollard said some 2,000 persons a month were applying [illegible] offices in London, as a result of the Middle East crisis.

"Most people feel that just as the country was beginning to revive after the prolonged austerity following the Second World War, it has been set back by the Suez crisis," she said.

Basic foods like bread, butter and margarine [illegible] price, bus fares are higher than ever before and petrol rationing has been introduced, she said.

"Nearly every one I met seemed to be talking of emigrating and most of them seemed to favor Canada," she said.

Work Has Begun On New Store

Work started this week on construction of a $100,000 Super-Valu market at the corner of Head Street and Esquimalt Road. Permit for the job was issued Tuesday to Kelly Douglas & Co.

Two houses on the site have been torn down to make room for the new store. Contract for the structure has been awarded to the Nanaimo firm of A & B Construction Co. Ltd. Architects are Underwood, McKinley & Cameron of Vancouver.

Class A Films Stand or Fall on Merits, That's All

Public Final Judge

By JOHN CROSBY

The flood of Class A pictures has now been unloosed on television and the reverberations are going to be heard a long, long time.

In New York City, where the CBS outlet is showing MGM's monster backlog of feature pictures on its late and early shows, the movies creamed the opposition just as they did in other areas.

The [illegible] led to some sweeping and, I think, wholly misleading conclusions. Live TV can't compete with Class A films that cost millions of dollars.

Network television is digging its own grave by allowing the film capital to compete with its high-quality merchandise in its own store.

The motion picture industry is digging its own grave by giving the public free access in the home to some of the movies' best pictures while still trying to sell tickets at the box office to its new pictures.

* * *

All these conclusions remain to be proved and I think will all be proved wrong. I still contend that you cannot make any generalities about the respective merits of live or filmed TV against feature pictures; the public is going to watch some features they like and some TV shows they like and they will turn either or both off when they're bad.

First Late Show was "Command Decision" with Clark Gable and it got a 28.4 Trendex, highest in the six-year operation of the Late Show. Well, "Command Decision" is a good picture; it's a fairly recent picture (1949). Then, of course, the sight of Gable on TV has quite a novelty value.

The following day we saw "Random Harvest" with Ronald Colman and Greer Garson, a picture that was released in 1942. It got the highest Trendex rating (21.1) of any picture in Late Show history (prior record 9.9).

* * *

Both those pictures also sharply emphasized another weakness that the feature films—no matter how good—will always have to face. They were both made for their time which means they exemplify not just the clothes and hairdos, but far more importantly the moods and attitudes of those times.

Another one, "Sahara," was made and released during the war when chauvinism was unrestrained. Today, some of its message is so blatant as to be embarrassing. Yet both of these are good pictures. With bad pictures —and MGM made some real stinkers—this sort of thing is going to be even more marked.

* * *

In the Metro grab bag of some 700-odd pictures, there will be many that will be almost unusable—including a number that were considered prestige pictures in their day.

The reputation of the pictures, the reputations of their stars, made it an enticing enough deal. Those same factors will lure lots of people into looking at them—for awhile. But after five minutes or so, the name value is going to wear thin, and the viewers will be looking at the picture itself.

And it had better be good. Because the people are not—as is the case in a movie theatre—trapped in a theatre, the admission already paid, the evening already shot. They're at home. They can turn to another station or they can turn the darned thing off and go to bed. And I bet they will, too.

Baby Pawn Stays In West—Judge

LONDON (AP)—A British judge Thursday ruled that little Tanya Chwastov, baby pawn in an East-West struggle, should be brought up as an American.

Mrs. Elena Diaczok of Detroit was awarded custody of her 2½-year - old daughter, whom she snatched from being carried behind the Iron Curtain by the child's Russian father.

Alexis Chwastov, 58, the child's father, fought to keep her, claiming his former common-law wife abandoned Tanya.

Justice Wynn Parry, who sat on the hearing in Chancery Court, said:

"I formed a favorable view of the mother. The attack upon her as one who is not fit to have control and custody fails.

"I find that the allegation that she had abandoned her child is not established."

Mrs. Diaczok, who flew to England to prevent her daughter being taken to Russia, was given permission to take Tanya back with her to the United States.

"On arrival there," the British judge said, "the child would cease to be a ward of the court."

New Faces Have Famed Names

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — The perennial search for new faces has brought up a whole crop recently but many of them are new faces with "old" names. Fans have already or will shortly be seeing performers who answer to such well-known names as Hope, Crosby, McCrae, Wayne, Burns, Chaplin and Barrymore.

* * *

The latest to take his place in this second-generation roster of show business is James MacArthur, son of Helen Hayes and the late playwright - newspaperman, Charles MacArthur, who is currently starring in the RKO production, "The Young Stranger," his first motion picture.

* * *

Ronnie Burns, good-looking son of George Burns and Gracie Allen, has a bright future ahead of him. He has proven himself nicely in Mom and Pop's TV show.

* * *

But James MacArthur is only the newest in a series of old names with new faces to crash Hollywood. Probably the greatest movie success so far, in this category is young Pat Wayne, son of John Wayne.

* * *

On the basis of his performance last year in "Mr. Roberts," Pat Wayne received the Photoplay award as the most promising newcomer of the year. This year Pat appeared in "The Searchers" with his father, again directed by the great John Ford.

* * *

Although Bob Hope starred in the Paramount comedy, "That Certain Feeling," there are actually four members of the Hope family appearing in the picture. The others are the three Hope children, Linda, Joe and Kelly.

* * *

Bing Crosby's son, Gary, is already well known through his radio appearances and through recordings. He and his brothers, Everett and Lindsay, have had their prospective careers temporarily interrupted by military service. Another crosby is active, too. She is Kathy Crosby, daughter of Bing's brother, Bob. Kathy, like all the Crosbys, has a good singing voice and she is increasingly active as a singer and as an actress.

* * *

If movie fans will watch attentively they will see another new generation, old generation name in "The First Texan," starring Joel McCrea, Jody McCrea, son of the noted star, has a small part in this picture. His mother is the former Frances Dee.

* * *

Chaplin is another familiar movie name that is creeping up into greater and greater prominence in the movie credit titles. It is Sydney, son of Charles Chaplin, who is featured in "Abdullah's Harem," and "Pillars of the Sky." He is currently rehearsing for his Broadway stage debut, opposite Judy Holliday in a new musical, "The Bells Are Ringing."

* * *

John Barrymore Jr.'s career has also been steadily advancing. Young Barrymore has the good looks of both his late father and his mother, the former Dolores Costello, and seems to have inherited his talent from both. Other "Jrs" in Hollywood who are active in pictures include Lon Chaney and Alan Hale, both of whom have dropped the diminutive from their name.
